

RETIRED? STAY IN UNISON

As a UNISON member you benefited from the essential cover that membership of the union gave you. Now that you've retired you can still have access to our range of benefits and deals and play an active part in your union by becoming a retired member.

It costs just £15 to become a retired member. This one off payment means you can:

- participate in UNISON's democracy
- have a voice on issues that matter to you
- benefit from a wide range of exclusive member discounts that can save you and your family money when you are shopping, buying insurance or looking for a holiday.

You qualify to become a retired member if you were a UNISON member continuously for at least two years on the day you retired.

YOUR VOICE IS HEARD

UNISON has a dynamic and vibrant retired members' section. A national retired members' committee meets regularly to discuss the issues that matter to you – this gives you a voice at the heart of the union and ensures that your views are heard at our national and retired members' conferences.

We value your experience. Our retired members attend branch meetings and often mentor new branch officials and reps, as well as getting involved in local and national campaigns.

You are the link between the employed and retired and that solidarity between generations is so important to everyone. The NHS, the provision of a decent income in older age and a fair society all matter to every UNISON member, regardless of age.

UNISON works with other pensioner organisations in the UK and across the world which gives you plenty of opportunities to campaign on issues that are important to you.
