2017 Health Care Service Group Conference

UNISON PRELIMINARY AGENDA

BT Convention Centre

24 - 26 April 2017

Negotiating and bargaining:

Professional and occupational issues

1. Improved learning, development and career progression opportunities for operational services members

Conference notes that members working in operational services are an integral part of the NHS, and should be treated as such. Often working in fast moving, ever changing environments, it is important that staff feel confident that they have the knowledge and ability to carry out their roles, and in addition, have clear routes and opportunities to follow in order to improve their learning, development and career progression.

Conference recognises the success of UNISON's One Team Campaign in highlighting the essential role members working in operational services play in the NHS. Not only do staff working in NHS operational services not always get the recognition that they deserve. The same group of staff, particularly those in pay bands 1-4, do not get adequate access to further learning and development. It is no secret that it is often roles with professional qualifications required that gain focus and attention when it comes to learning and development. For example, according to the Office of National Statistics (ONS) Labour Force survey in 2014 in the 13 weeks prior to the survey, only a quarter of NHS administrative and clerical staff reported receiving any training or development, compared with almost half in the overall workforce. Members working in operational services often go beyond their duties, with some finding that they are asked to carry out tasks above their pay band. Access to learning and development should be a core part of members' roles, with the benefits to organisations, staff and service users recognised.

Conference is concerned that without an increased focus on the importance of learning and development, and an understanding of the need for career progression opportunities for all, some operational services members will continue to feel unappreciated with some feeling unable to remain working in the NHS.

Conference calls on the Health Service Group Executive to:

- 1) Use UNISON's One Team campaign to highlight the lack of learning, development and career progression opportunities available to members working in NHS operational services.
- 2) Use UNISON's One Team campaign to call for greater investment in training and development for NHS operational services staff.
- 3) Undertake research to gain a better understanding of the level of access members working in NHS operational services have to learning, development and career progression.

2017 Health Care Service Group Conference UNISON PRELIMINARY AGENDA

- 4) Work with the operational services occupational group to develop an operational services skills charter that will support members career development and progression.
- 5) Work with the operational services occupational group to use this issue to organise and recruit staff working in operational services in the NHS.
- 6) Work across all four UK countries, with suitable organisations and NHS employers to raise the profile of learning, development and career progression, to ensure positive steps are made to encourage change and improve accessibility.
- 7) Encourage and support branches to develop local campaigns around access to learning opportunities, development and career progression, thereby improving the operational services workforce.

Operational Services Occupational Group

2. Safeguarding the contribution of allied health professionals

Conference notes that staff across the NHS have felt the full force of austerity since 2010 in the form of pay cuts, the ongoing pay freeze, attacks on other terms and conditions, and the threat of downbanding.

Conference believes that, in addition to these attacks, for many working in the allied health professions there are further pressures.

Conference is particularly concerned about issues such as parity of pay, vacancy freezes and the ability of allied health professionals to access the same progression opportunities as other staff. Too often where there has been investment it has gone in to more generic roles with the risk of deskilling, loss of professional identity and curtailing of career development.

Conference believes that crucial roles within the NHS risk being lost when staff leave the service and are not replaced like for like. Examples have come to light where departing senior occupational therapists have not been replaced or have been replaced with different staff, such as senior physiotherapists.

Conference asserts that not only do such moves cause big problems for the workforce when they are called upon to plug gaps in provision, but they may also damage the quality of care for patients if the skill mix within departments or teams is altered.

Conference is alarmed that the ongoing underfunding of our NHS means that some employers will continue to attempt to cut corners and provide care on the cheap, by using staff to carry out work that should be done by higher banded colleagues.

Conference therefore welcomes UNISON's continuing work to tackle attempted downbanding across the NHS.

Conference calls on the Service Group Executive to:

2017 Health Care Service Group Conference

UNISON PRELIMINARY AGENDA

- 1) highlight the need to safeguard the roles of allied health professionals as an essential part of the healthcare team, including senior and extended roles as part of the necessary skill mix;
- 2) promote the importance to patients and the wider NHS of healthcare staff working in science, therapy and technical roles;
- 3) re-emphasise the importance of job evaluation training and the role of staff side in a partnership-based system of job evaluation;
- 4) continue to support pay and career progression for all staff in line with the principles of the Knowledge and Skills Framework; and
- 5) continue to provide advice, guidance and support to regions and branches in their campaigns against the downbanding of staff across the healthcare team.

Science, Therapy and Technical Occupational Group

3. Healthcare support workers and the nursing associate pilots

Conference notes that the NHS is in the midst of a nursing shortage, which has led to healthcare assistants (HCAs) working in the NHS performing roles previously done by nurses without the equivalent pay or education. Instead of investing in the whole HCA workforce, the government has chosen to focus on creating a new 'nursing associate' role in England, a move that conference does not believe will solve the NHS staffing crisis.

Whilst it is recognised that the new nursing associate role could help improve the career prospects of existing healthcare assistants who already provide vital support to the NHS, they should not be seen simply as another cheap alternative to registered nurses.

In October last year, Health Education England (HEE) announced a pilot scheme that will train 2,000 people as nursing associates over the coming months. It is vital that these new roles are recruited into UNISON membership to ensure that they are not exploited by their employers who may use the uncertainty around the purpose of the nursing associate to plug gaps in NHS care because of nursing shortages.

Conference is worried that the nursing associate is a role that is only being developed in England, leading to more divergence with Scotland, Wales and Northern Ireland in the shape of the nursing workforce.

Conference is also concerned that it is unclear how the nursing associate will be distinct from, and fit with, existing assistant practitioners working in the nursing sector. Many assistant practitioners, who already work directly to support nurses, feel their role has been marginalised and devalued by the introduction of this new role.

Conference calls on the Health Service Group Executive to campaign for:

- 1) Nationally defined scope of practice and role titles for each level of HCA and the nursing associate so that role boundaries and responsibilities are clear for staff and patients.

2017 Health Care Service Group Conference UNISON PRELIMINARY AGENDA

- 2) Standardised education, training and competency standards for the whole support workforce set nationally.
- 3) A review of pay banding and career structures for all healthcare support workers.
- 4) More investment and support for those who wish to progress on-the-job into registered nursing or other health professions.
- 5) Appropriate and proportionate regulation for healthcare support workers including nursing associates.

Conference further calls on the Health Service Group Executive to:

- a) Ensure UNISON continues to be involved nationally in overseeing the nursing associate pilots and developing job descriptions and joint guidance on employment issues.
- b) Work with branches and regions to monitor the nursing associate pilots and ensure that nationally agreed job descriptions and Agenda for Change bandings are used consistently, with all nursing associates receiving their normal salary including unsocial hours throughout their training.
- c) Work with branches and regions to recruit and organise nursing associates to ensure they are properly supported.
- d) Resist attempts by employers to use these new roles for purposes of role substitution and dilution of skill mix in nursing teams and seek clarity on expectations for different roles and how they might fit into care teams to maintain public safety and confidence without creating divisions.
- e) Campaign for appropriate learning opportunities and career development to be available to all members of care teams. This must avoid reinventing further discrepancies across and between different roles.
- f) Insist that future developments are subject to equality impact risk assessments and principles of equal pay for work of equal value.
- g) Campaign for guaranteed jobs at the end of nursing associate training or apprenticeships.
- h) Ensure that nurses involved in training nursing associates are given mentorship training, sufficient time and appropriate banding.

Nursing and Midwifery Occupational Group

4. Protecting and supporting nursing associates and other healthcare staff

Conference notes the government's intention to recruit and train nursing associates as part of a multi-disciplinary health care team, and welcomes the decision to regulate the nursing associate role. However, conference believes that there should be a comprehensive and proportionate approach to regulation across the whole of the clinical support workforce.

2017 Health Care Service Group Conference UNISON PRELIMINARY AGENDA

The opportunity for career progression for our members in healthcare support roles is also to be welcomed, and conference believes that nursing associates can be an opportunity to upskill support staff and add extra value to the nursing team.

However, there must be robust safeguards against substitution of nursing associates for fully qualified nurses. Safe staffing ratios need to be clear, as outcomes for patients are worsened when qualified nurse posts are replaced by less qualified staff. Further, nursing associate trainees need to be mentored, supervised and supported by registered nurses, and conference is concerned that there are not enough nurses with sufficient time to do this effectively.

Conference notes that UNISON is working at local, regional and national level to oversee the nursing associate pilots and make sure that the role is developed in a fair and sustainable way; and that work has been done through the NHS Staff Council to secure national agreement that trainees will be employed and paid on a band 3 rate.

Conference therefore calls upon the Service Group Executive to continue the dialogue with all appropriate NHS bodies and seek to ensure that:

1. a rigorous and independent evaluation of the pilots be widely published at the end of the pilot programme, including a full equality impact assessment;
2. all staff who successfully complete the nursing associate training are able to secure jobs at band 4 level;
3. there is a consistent approach to accreditation of the nursing associate qualification so that it counts towards an agreed proportion of the full nursing degree for those who wish to go on and qualify as nurses;
4. the nursing associate role does not become a glass ceiling in the same way as the old Senior Enrolled Nurse role;
5. all levels of the healthcare assistant and support workforce are valued, correctly banded and have opportunities to progress and achieve recognised levels of training and competence.

National Women's Committee

5. New roles in the NHS

Conference notes that staff shortages, skills gaps, public expectations, integration of services and a mounting funding crisis are all driving initiatives to redesign the NHS workforce.

Conference recognises that workforce redesign done properly – supported by AfC job evaluation and the principles of equal pay – has the potential to develop skills and open up career pathways for all grades of staff. ‘Benefits realisation’ for staff using the skills escalator provided for by the Agenda for Change Knowledge and Skills Framework is long overdue.

2017 Health Care Service Group Conference UNISON PRELIMINARY AGENDA

However, Conference is concerned about the knee-jerk approach to workforce from governments and employers rushing to develop new roles such as physician associates, nursing associates, medical assistants, and health coaches.

Many of these initiatives have been developed in isolation rather than as part of holistic review of the whole workforce. They often lack a strong evidence base, instead focusing on creating lesser qualified roles, with a shorter training requirement, as a quick fix to plug gaps.

A report by the Kings Fund – Supporting integration through new roles and working across boundaries – concluded that:

“Rather than assuming a need for new roles, the evidence suggests that valuing and reinforcing professional and organisational identities can...facilitate closer teamworking across organisational boundaries...New roles may be needed in some cases; however the need for such roles should be demonstrated rather than assumed.”

Although many new roles are described as ‘supporting’ a registered professional, the risk of role substitution is obvious. This approach can create career development options for some staff, but it also risks missing opportunities to extend the roles of others.

For example, there are concerns that employers may automatically look to the new physician associate role, without also exploring the option of developing advanced roles for STAT (Science, Therapy, and Technical) occupations – which might be better suited to delivering person-centred, recovery-focused care.

A consequence of this ad hoc approach to new role development is inadequate coverage of professional regulation in healthcare. The physician associate for example is not regulated in the UK, but merely eligible to join a voluntary register. Yet physicians associates work to a scope of practice that includes a high degree of clinical decision-making autonomy.

Conference therefore calls on the Service Group Executive to:

- 1) Ensure we recruit and organise effectively among staff in new roles so that we can represent their interests and support them to access good quality training and development
- 2) Monitor the development of new roles, their costs and effectiveness
- 3) Campaign against cost-driven role substitution and for safe and effective staffing
- 4) Promote and share good practice models for extending existing roles as well as developing new roles
- 5) Promote alternatives to the medical model of healthcare such as occupational therapy
- 6) Raise concerns about gaps in regulation, and campaign for a comprehensive and proportionate scheme of regulation fit for 21st century healthcare

2017 Health Care Service Group Conference UNISON PRELIMINARY AGENDA

- 7) Campaign for comprehensive, fully resourced training, skills acquisition and career development opportunities for all NHS staff across all bands.

Science, Therapy and Technical Occupational Group

6. Monitoring the impact of scrapping NHS bursaries

In its response to its consultation on reforming healthcare education funding in England, the government confirmed that it would be going ahead with its decision to remove NHS bursaries for nurses, midwives and allied health professionals and replace them with tuition fees and loans from autumn 2017. This is despite Scotland, Wales and Northern Ireland's devolved government's confirming that their countries will retain the bursary.

This decision was made by the government despite overwhelming opposition from trade unions and professional bodies, employers, universities, and campaign groups. A YouGov poll of 1,656 adults, undertaken between 13 and 14 June 2016, found that there was very little public support for removing NHS bursaries and replacing them with tuition fees and loans. The decision is a political one which is risky and untested. The government did not consult on how healthcare student education should be funded and failed to secure a mandate.

Far from encouraging 10,000 additional training places by 2020, Conference is concerned that cutting NHS bursaries will discourage many people, including UNISON members who are healthcare assistants and want career progression, from becoming a nurse, midwife or allied health professional because of the fear of debt. Even if the reforms do not put off students, course places will be restricted by the lack of available and suitable placements.

Conference fears that the expected decline in numbers entering nursing, midwifery and the allied health professions in higher education will exacerbate the current recruitment crisis in the health and social care sector putting patient safety at risk and weaken the diversity of the profession.

The government's proposal states that it will ensure sustainable funding for universities. However, because of the decline in student numbers and the need to finance access bursaries for lower social economic students, Conference is worried that universities will be worse off financially.

Contrary to the government's claim that scrapping NHS bursaries will save the Treasury money, Conference anticipates that there will be no cost savings to the Exchequer because most nurses will not earn enough to repay the entire loan and the decline in numbers entering nursing will increase agency staffing costs.

Conference calls on the Health Service Group Executive to:

- 1) continue to campaign against the removal of the NHS bursary and the introduction of tuition fees and loans for healthcare students in England;
- 2) continue to campaign for healthcare students to be salaried or to receive a living bursary in all four countries;

2017 Health Care Service Group Conference UNISON PRELIMINARY AGENDA

- 3) monitor the impact that the removal of the bursary has on student numbers, including application and attrition rates, and the size, make up and diversity of our future NHS workforce;
- 4) monitor the impact of the introduction of tuition fees and student loans on healthcare students' debt levels and living standards;
- 5) monitor the quality of the placements if there are additional training places;
- 6) monitor the impact reduced student numbers will have on university funding and patient safety;
- 7) monitor the impact unpaid student loans will have on the Treasury; and
- 8) hold the government to account for its decision to remove the NHS bursary and their claims that it would create additional training places, create sustainable university funding, and save the government money.

Nursing and Midwifery Occupational Group

7. Governing Body Registration Fees

Conference welcomes the work carried out by the National Nursing Occupational Group and other Service Groups through ongoing engagement with the governing bodies.

Conference notes that in these days of continued austerity and pay restraint where our members are increasingly finding themselves in financial difficulty, the governing bodies continue to refuse to offer registrants the opportunity to pay their registration fees by monthly direct debit. Payment of registration fees by monthly direct debit will afford our members who are registered with the governing bodies more opportunity to carry out better budgeting to meet their financial commitments across the course of the whole year thereby reducing the risk that they might find themselves more financially compromised when faced with either once yearly or quarterly payments for registration fees.

Conference calls on the Service Group Executive and the National Nursing and other Occupational Groups to lobby the governing bodies to provide the choice of a monthly direct debit for registration fees to enable registrants to better meet their financial commitments.

Lanarkshire Health

8. Car parking charges - an attack on NHS staff and the public

This Conference notes that car parking charges mainly affect NHS staff in England and that this results in major costs to many staff.

The cost of parking continues to rise in many areas. In Bucks Hospitals it is now from £20 a month, with no guarantee of a parking space. Where else would you pay for something that you don't receive?

2017 Health Care Service Group Conference UNISON PRELIMINARY AGENDA

Staff are becoming increasingly stressed over this and the time it takes searching for places and subsequent fines imposed by private parking companies for parking incorrectly.

Travelling by car for many NHS staff is now a necessity because of Local Authority public transport cuts means staff have no choice but to travel by car and yet they are then penalised by their employers for this.

This Conference also recognises that the cost of car parking at hospitals is a major complaint held by the public and those using NHS services, with much publicity surrounding this.

This Conference is asking to continue to oppose car parking charges and to continue to support staff in countries and trusts where charges do not apply to ensure they don't creep in.

This Conference asks the Service Group Executive to organise a National Freedom of Information request to all NHS organisations providing services to ask:

- 1) The scale and range of charges in their Trust/Organisation.
- 2) Those exempted from charges.
- 3) Charges for the public.
- 4) How the income from charges is used and how much is used to subsidise services e.g. lighting which would need to be provided anyway.
- 5) How many fines are issued and where does the income go.
- 6) Which private contractors are used.
- 7) How much profit/surplus there is over and above the administrative running costs.
- 8) That this information is given to the press, regions and local branches, for them to use in any campaigns they are involved in.

Bucks Healthcare and Community

9. Key Worker Housing

This Conference notes the issues for young workers in essential public services who cannot afford the rising cost of housing - especially in the city centres. Low wages, public service cuts and the high cost of living compound the problem to make it even harder for young workers to afford to live.

This Conference welcomes the announcement by NHS England that they will build key worker housing in major cities.

This Conference further notes that rent hikes are also threatening to push out workers, even in key worker housing provided by the Government.

This Conference therefore calls on the Service Group Executive to:

2017 Health Care Service Group Conference UNISON PRELIMINARY AGENDA

- 1) Seek to work with other stakeholders, such as the National Union of Students, to campaign for and to negotiate with the Government to introduce rent controls in key worker housing for NHS workers (including student nurses and other health professionals);
- 2) Use lobbying and campaigning to win our case.

Equalities issues

10. NHS Equality and Diversity Council LGBT group

Conference welcomes the establishment of a lesbian, gay, bisexual and transgender (LGBT) task and finish group by the Equality and Diversity Council (EDC) of NHS England. The EDC aims to tackle health inequalities and promote equality for all, bringing to life the values of the NHS Constitution. The LGBT group was set up in acknowledgement of the fact that LGBT workforce equality is a less developed area of work than some other equality streams, while discrimination remains all too common. UNISON represents the staff side on the LGBT group.

Objectives of the group are to:

- 1) Develop and promote a central source of good and best practice and advice and guidance in relation to workforce policies and procedures which support and encourage an inclusive approach to LGBT staff
- 2) Develop an LGBT workforce standard for health and social care
- 3) Integrate LGBT issues into national training curricula and programmes
- 4) Ensure that issues relating to the bullying and harassment of LGBT staff are actively addressed in any national campaign / initiative
- 5) Promote clear, visible leadership and engagement across the system on LGBT issues
- 6) Improve monitoring of LGBT data across the system – and the confidence of organisations and managers to collect and use LGBT data more effectively.

Conference endorses these objectives and notes the importance of training, leadership, data and monitoring and role models in tackling discrimination and prejudice and building equality. Conference welcomes the aim to have best practice resource available on the diversity and inclusion pages of the NHS Employers website for LGBT History Month in February 2017.

Although this is an initiative of NHS England, best practice from NHS Scotland and Wales and HSC in Northern Ireland will prove invaluable in developing the work.

Conference calls on the Health Service Group Executive to:

2017 Health Care Service Group Conference UNISON PRELIMINARY AGENDA

- a) Urge health branches from all parts of the UK to submit examples of good practice, advice and guidance;
- b) Support and promote appropriate recommendations from the EDC LGBT group on the above objectives;
- c) Urge branches in England to support the work locally.

National Lesbian, Gay, Bisexual and Transgender Committee

11. Impact of cuts on Trans health workers

Conference notes the destructive impact of public spending cuts on health workers. This covers many aspects including pay, terms and conditions, workload, stress levels, the complexity of service user needs, cost of living, to name just some factors.

Conference welcomes research for UNISON by NatCen Social Research on the particular impact on lesbian, gay, bisexual and transgender (LGBT) people. This research, published at the end of 2016, showed a disproportionate impact on LGBT people in general and particular issues for Trans people. The impact on health services featured prominently in the research. It showed workers are struggling to cope and LGBT workers are feeling increasingly vulnerable. LGBT specialist health services are disappearing and progress on LGBT equality at work has been stopped or is in reverse. This is particularly acute for Trans workers who face highest levels of discrimination, including in the health service.

This is backed up by UNISON's first annual equality survey: two thirds of trans members working in health services had experienced or witnessed discrimination in their workplace in the past year, compared to a quarter of all members who responded.

One of the common triggers for discrimination against Trans workers is the process of transitioning from the gender assigned at birth to their correct gender. This can be a very stressful time for a person anyway and is made worse when they are accessing gender identity clinic services. This is because of increasingly long waiting times and shortage of trained and knowledgeable staff, as shown by the NatCen research. By contrast, a positive experience at work can make all the difference and the role of UNISON reps in assisting with this can be life-changing. Some NHS employers, responding to UNISON and community pressure, have shown best practice in this.

Conference welcomes the UNISON resources for reps bargaining for Trans equality and supporting Trans members. These include the bargaining factsheet 'Transgender workers rights' and UNISON's 'Introductory guide for trade union reps supporting trans members', along with the expertise provided by health members in our UNISON LGBT members group and its active trans network.

Conference calls on the Health Service Group Executive to:

- 1) Publicise the findings of the NatCen Social Research for UNISON on the implications of public spending cuts on LGBT people and services, and use the health specific findings from the research in health service group campaigning against cuts;

- 2) Highlight in particular the funding crisis in gender identity services and specialist LGBT mental health services and the impact this has on workforce wellbeing;
- 3) Publicise UNISON's resources on trans workers equality, urging health branches to check local trans equality policies are up to date and in line with the UNISON's guidance on best practice and reps are familiar with the issues;
- 4) Urge health branches to publicise and promote UNISON's LGBT group, encouraging members to attend regional and national LGBT events and supporting branch level initiatives.

National Lesbian, Gay, Bisexual and Transgender Committee

12. European Union nurses post-EU exit – wanted, needed and valued

Conference recognises the valuable and vital contribution that nationals from other countries in the European Union (EU) have made to the UK. There are around 22,000 EU nurses, health visitors and midwives working in the NHS, making up about 6.5% of the total nursing workforce, whilst average vacancy rates for nurses in England are around 9.4%.

Conference notes that since the UK voted to 'Leave' on the 23rd June, the status of EU nurses remains uncertain as the government refuses to give a commitment to guarantee the long-term rights of these EU workers who have made a home in the UK.

Conference further notes that the NHS risks collapse as many of our EU nurses may choose to leave the UK rather than face this uncertainty as the government has refused to give any assurances to our EU nurses. The government has suggested that companies could be forced to publish the proportion of 'international' staff on their books in a move which would effectively 'name and shame' businesses. Even NHS England has said attempts to curb immigration could trigger the closure of hospitals and care homes that have relied on nearly 130,000 European nurses, doctors and other staff for years.

Conference is also saddened to hear that hate crime has soared since the EU exit vote with the overall figure up 20%; xenophobic rhetoric is becoming commonplace within the mainstream media and some of our MPs are fuelling hate.

Conference welcomes England's Chief Nursing Officer's message to EU nurses post-EU exit, saying 'you are an integral and vital part of the health and care family and your skills and compassionate care directly benefit patients, families and communities.'

UNISON has offered a range of support for EU members and has called on the Government to give a commitment to EU workers. A new EU members' network has been launched and meetings and an internet seminar with its EU members and have already taken place. It has also commissioned the Joint Council for the Welfare of Immigrants (JCWI) to provide a booklet for European Economic Area (EEA) nationals and their families in the UK, to inform and reassure them of their rights in this country. And in the autumn, a UNISON EU network road show will be touring the regions, when the union will be listening to the concerns of members and talking about how it can campaign for the right to remain.

Conference notes this is a fluid and fast moving situation, however, employment and immigration rights remain the same for now. Once Article 50 is invoked things are likely to become even more uncertain. UNISON will continue to fight for EU nurses to be able to remain in the UK. The NHS is already facing a major nursing shortage and difficulty recruiting and retaining nurses, therefore, allowing any ongoing ambiguity over their future is the wrong way of treating people who care for our friends and family every day, and continues to make recruitment and retention even more difficult.

Therefore, conference calls on the Health Service Group Executive to:

- 1) Continue to work with the Cavendish Coalition to lobby for the right of EU workers in the NHS to remain in the UK
- 2) Continue to work with regions and branches to understand and address issues facing our EU nurses
- 3) Ensure the voice of nursing members are heard in EU exit negotiations whether via the TUC or directly with the Government
- 4) Lobby for the best possible EU exit deal to be achieved once Article 50 is invoked, including the need to protect freedom of movement for EU nurses
- 5) Work in partnership with the NHS Staff Council to support EU Staff, including nurses, working in the NHS who have been the victim of hate crime, including a zero tolerance to hate crime whether from NHS patients, family or staff
- 6) Work with Branch Reps, including Equalities Reps, to raise awareness of the updated 'Challenge Racism in the Workplace' toolkit and UNISON's race discrimination claims protocol amongst EU nurses
- 7) Update UNISON's guidance aimed at migrant nurses and midwives who are working or are intending to work in the UK
- 8) Continue to work with the Joint Council for the Welfare of Immigrants (JCWI) on what steps EU nurses can take to protect themselves and promote that immigration advice can be accessed via UNISONdirect

Nursing and Midwifery Occupational Group

13. Migrant workers, racism and the NHS

This health conference notes there has been an increase in racist rhetoric after the EU referendum and an increase in some political parties attempting to infer that the cause of the NHS's current lack of funding is due to immigration.

There are approximately 84,000 migrant workers from the European economic Area, totalling 6% of the England's social care workforce and over 20% of NHS workforce.

2017 Health Care Service Group Conference UNISON PRELIMINARY AGENDA

This government has already attempted to enforce deportation of qualified nurses from abroad who don't earn a given annual salary. We also note that this scheme was unworkable and caused the government into an embarrassing u-turn.

Migrant workers have always been required to work in the NHS and without them the service would have not been able to function. This is still true today.

This conference believes:

- 1) that the National Health Service has been built and sustained partly by the huge number of migrant workers coming from across the world to work in it. Often migrant workers have been in the lowest paid, so-called "Cinderella" jobs – nights, mental health, elderly and community care, SEN jobs, ancillary jobs etc.
- 2) that migrant workers have played a positive role in our NHS, and are not responsible for the current financial crisis experienced by almost all NHS Trusts around the country.
- 3) some would like to blame migrants for lower wages or not enough services. Neither are true.
- 4) it is predatory governments, privatising and outsourcing services, sticking to 1% pay increase, and cutting £30billion from NHS budgets who have lowered wages - alongside some of the worst employee and trade union rights in the western world.
- 5) it is the £30 billion NHS cuts which have reduced services, not the £0.2b migrant use of the NHS which is less than they pay in tax as workers.
- 6) unless these lies are challenged, a culture where racism and xenophobia will increase and deflect from the real cause of current financial instability in the NHS, chronic underfunding and re-organisation by Tory and previous Con-Dem coalition.
- 7) migrant workers, like black workers, are often subject to racism in work and face a much higher rate of complaint and disciplinary action.
- 8) Brexit (whilst being a rejection of the status quo of austerity, marketisation and a growing divide between rich and poor, which has made so many lives bad) does not have to be a rejection of immigration.

Conference resolves that:

- a) UNISON should campaign for the continuation of full rights for all migrant workers already in the UK, to work and stay. Both because it is right to do so, and because without this the NHS is under serious threat of understaffing and collapse.
- b) We should provide material for all members saying we welcome migrant workers, showing the benefits to all of our multi-cultural workforce.

2017 Health Care Service Group Conference UNISON PRELIMINARY AGENDA

- c) We should campaign for the rights of workers from across the world to come and work in our NHS without restrictions, as has always been the case since the start of the NHS.
- d) However our members voted over Brexit, we should equip them to challenge racism and anti-migrant sentiment, as it benefits the government, not our members, black or white, wherever we were born.
- e) UNISON should continue to put the blame for the current NHS financial crisis not with migrant workers, but where it belongs, with the political decision to continue with austerity. We should campaign in the health and social care sector for proper funding of both, not by increasing council taxes or national insurance but by taxing the wealthy.

14. Challenging racism in the workplace

Conference notes that people have come from all over the world to help deliver our world-class health service. Everyone relies on people of all different races, religion and backgrounds to deliver the NHS we are so proud of.

Conference further notes rising reports of xenophobic and racist incidents in the wake of the European Union (EU) referendum. It is deplorable that anyone should face any kind of abuse. It is vital that UNISON not only stands up to such behaviour but also supports branches and activists to challenge prejudice wherever it raises its head, and especially so in the workplace.

Conference notes the publication of UNISON's "tackling prejudice and xenophobia" materials, and welcomes the use of these resources by health branches and by activists in their communities.

Conference additionally notes the Executive's wider work on supporting and defending EU migrant workers in particular during the ongoing negotiations for the UK exit from the EU.

Conference calls on the Service Group Executive to:

- 1) Promote UNISON's "tackling prejudice and xenophobia" work to health branches and activists.
- 2) Work with Black Members' Committee and the Membership Participation Unit, as well as UNISON's migrant worker networks, to ensure health branches and activists are briefed on the latest issues and campaign resources.
- 3) Continue to articulate the positive impact of a diverse, multi-national, NHS workforce and the benefits this brings to service users and the public.

2017 Health Care Service Group Conference UNISON PRELIMINARY AGENDA

15. Discrimination in the NHS

The NHS employs 1.4 million people, many of these staff are black, they work as brain surgeons, researchers, nurses, CQC inspectors, care workers to name a few. The NHS that relies on black staff to function also discriminates against black people in terms of opportunity, recruitment, promotion, bullying, victimisation (particularly if they whistle blow) and the disciplinary process.

Roger Kline published the Snowy White Peaks report in 2014, the report recognised that although NHS organisations collected data on discrimination; however, in the last 20 years little has changed for Black people in the NHS. In June 2016 the first Workforce Race Equality Standards (WRES) report was published. The WRES was introduced in 2015 to better understand why it is that black staff often receive much poorer treatment than white staff.

The report received widespread media attention, the numbers did not make for pleasant reading, 75 percent of all acute trusts showed that a higher percentage of black staff were being harassed, bullied or abused by staff in comparison to white staff in the last 12 months. In 86% of acute Trusts, a higher percentage of black staff do not believe that their organisation offers equal opportunities for career progression or promotion in comparison with white staff; 81 percent of acute Trusts report a higher proportion of black staff having personally experienced discrimination from a manager, team leader or colleague than white staff.

For the majority of black staff who work in the NHS, these figures do not offer any surprise because many have already experienced discrimination, been denied promotion, been more qualified and experienced than the person offered the job. However, we cannot continue like this, we cannot continue to report unfairness in the NHS with no change being offered. We must work together to address these issues affecting black members as the largest public services union.

Conference calls upon the Health Service Group Executive to work with the National Black Members Committee to:

- 1) Highlight the issue of the discrimination faced by black people working in the NHS;
- 2) Explore ways to raise the issue of black discrimination in the NHS at a national level.

16. Sickness Absence and Occupational Health Services

Conference endorses the need for effective management of staff health and attendance at work and the support mechanisms, which promote good practice. We need to enable UNISON health members with long term or acute conditions to lead full and productive lives and balance their health work roles effectively.

2017 Health Care Service Group Conference UNISON PRELIMINARY AGENDA

Conference is concerned that manual workers are performing increased physically demanding roles which will have a cumulative negative effect on their health, such as musculoskeletal or back problems. For Administrative and Clerical members similar rises are being reported not only in musculoskeletal and back problems, but also in repetitive strain injuries as well.

Conference notes that some NHS organisations and private employers in the NHS are putting pressure on members to take annual leave in place of sick leave or are being informed to use their annual leave to meet medical or other treatment appointments relating to their sickness.

Most employers have a direct occupational health provider to support members' health issues. However there are recent Government proposals for employers, who may not have a direct service.

No doubt this group will include private employers across the NHS, where if an employee is off on long sickness, they would be referred to a call centre by either a GP or the employer. All communication with the off-work employee will be electronically; therefore it is unlikely there will be any one-to-one meetings between the employee and the occupational health assessor.

An employee can only be referred once a year and the employer will receive tax relief (estimated to be around £500) providing the employee has completed a phased 4 week return to work scheme.

Conference notes this "Fit for Work" service may have the authority to overrule a GP's sick note. This allowing employers to use capability policies to dismiss an employee, if the employee is unable to complete the phased return to work action plan.

Conference calls on the Health Service Group Executive to:

- 1) Call on NHS employers including those private employers in the NHS, to promote sickness absence policies that support staff and tackle the underlying causes of workplace ill health.
- 2) Raise awareness and promote UNISON's model disability leave agreement and UNISON's health and safety guides on and disability and the ageing workforce across health branches.
- 3) Campaign against any NHS employers who are not complying with the NHS Staff Council guidelines on prevention and management of sickness absence. Where there may be a private employer in the NHS, to urge that employer to follow these guidelines.

17. Health, Safety and wellbeing

NHS Blood and Transplant (NHSBT) is finding itself under pressure in the drive of the NHS to make financial savings. In England hospitals are charged for each unit of blood and NHSBT has been trying to keep the price of blood low. This has meant more and more 'lean' working practices putting staff under greater pressure at work.

These pressures exist across the NHS and they raise for us serious health and safety concerns for our members. With stress being the single highest category of sickness absence across the NHS this underlines the real importance of UNISON campaigning hard on staff wellbeing and on work pressures not being used so that accidents are more likely to occur in the workplace.

NHSBT drivers are facing longer journeys as NHSBT reduces its number of manufacturing plants. Reduced numbers of staff on teams puts increased pressure on staff trying to provide an excellent service to the public and the NHS making the likelihood of accidents at work greater.

Conference agrees to:

- 1) Issue firm and well argued guidance to its branches and members on 'lean' working practices and their implications for members' health and wellbeing.
- 2) Encourage the election of more UNISON health and safety representatives in workplaces to regularly investigate and report on working practices that threaten our members' health and wellbeing.
- 3) Do more to develop guidance on health and wellbeing for our members paying particular attention to the increase in mental health problems for UNISON members arising from increased management pressures caused by insufficient NHS funding.

18. Protect the health and wellbeing of ambulance staff

UNISON has been at the forefront of negotiations around the retention of ambulance staff for the last 2 years. Through this process we have highlighted issues which are driving ambulance staff to leave the job they love. No matter what the role within the ambulance service, UNISON needs to work with employers to improve the root causes of people leaving.

We know all NHS staff are under increasing pressure as budgets are tightened and cuts bite. However, ambulance staff have some unique pressures which need addressing.

Ambulance staff often work long shifts and with unpredictable finish times, they regularly work in excess of 12 or 14 hours, with the longest shift recorded in recent times being 20.5 hours. Due to the high levels of demand, ambulance staff rarely get the breaks they need to ensure they are able to deliver critical care to patients. Ambulance staff are not robots, they are humans and employers need to find a better balance between performance and health and wellbeing.

This is why we welcome a joint initiative to look at the mental and physical wellbeing of ambulance workers, involving a 2 year strategic action plan, developed in partnership, to find ways to better engage and support the ambulance workforce.

2017 Health Care Service Group Conference UNISON PRELIMINARY AGENDA

But, the agenda for this work is big so we need to focus peoples' actions to deliver real and lasting change for ambulance workers.

Conference calls on the Service Group Executive to support the ambulance occupational group to:

- 1) Engage with the National Ambulance Strategic Partnership Forum Health and Wellbeing project, and equivalent devolved nations groups, to deliver genuine change enabling a greater focus on health and wellbeing, including mental health
- 2) Campaign for a better balance between ambulance performance and staff wellbeing
- 3) Work towards a lasting reduction in incidents of violence and aggression and bullying and harassment
- 4) Improve engagement with all staff in the UK ambulance services, including under represented groups
- 5) Use all opportunities to argue and campaign against increases to retirement age
- 6) Assist ambulance branches to secure Board level commitment and local investment to enable improvements for the workforce

Ambulance Occupational Group

19. Older women working in the NHS

Conference notes that many women working in the NHS will not have a work history which will entitle them to a decent pension, or enable them to retire early. With the eventual rise of the state pension age to 67, it is inevitable that many women will be working until that age, when they are able to access the state pension to supplement their paltry occupational pension.

With an NHS workforce which is predominately female, conference recognises that there are gender specific concerns for older women workers – including menopause, musculoskeletal injuries and osteoporosis – which may lead them into capability proceedings. This is particularly the case for lower graded workers, who are more likely to be involved in work which involves greater physical exertion.

Conference welcomes the work which has already been done to address these issues, particularly the production of the Age Awareness Toolkit, but remains concerned at the potential for capability and performance procedures being used against older workers when redeployment is problematical – particularly when there are few redeployment opportunities at an appropriate level and/or where retraining is required.

Conference therefore calls on the Service Group Executive to continue to work with regions, branches and all appropriate NHS bodies to:

- 1) raise awareness of the toolkit, and encourage its use to support older members to continue to work in a safe and healthy environment;

2017 Health Care Service Group Conference UNISON PRELIMINARY AGENDA

- 2) seek to ensure that redeployment and retraining opportunities are offered to all staff, and that capability is not used unfairly to penalise staff where their age and related health conditions are contributory factors;
- 3) work with the self organised groups to provide further guidance to branches on negotiating policies to take account of gender and age-specific health conditions, and disability leave.

20. Dementia friendly employers

Dementia is a neurological condition that has wide ranging symptoms, the most common of these being confusion, memory loss and difficulty communicating.

There are currently around 850,000 people with dementia in the United Kingdom, 40,000 people with dementia are under 65. This is expected to increase to a million within the next 9 years. 225,000 people have been diagnosed this year, that's 1 person every 3 minutes. Dementia is not restricted to older people. Almost 5% of people diagnosed with dementia are under the age of 65 of which 18% continue to work after their diagnosis.

Disabled members know full well the impact of the lack of awareness and understanding of disabilities in the workplace. We welcome the work undertaken by the Alzheimer's Society and the production of 'Creating a dementia friendly workplace', which is a practical guide for employers. UNISON was involved in the working group that helped develop this important piece of work, which gives practical tips about how to create an environment which is dementia friendly but would also be disabled person friendly too!

No worker wants to find themselves placed in a situation where they cannot get the support they need. Employers should take appropriate action to ensure that no employee is treated unfairly or stereotyped, which can sometimes happen unwittingly, due to a lack of understanding, training and knowledge.

Dementia can impact on workers' terms and conditions in a number of ways. For example failure to make reasonable adjustments; insufficient carers leave for employees who care for dependents who have dementia; or when workers come into contact with people with dementia, who may not be diagnosed, but have challenging behaviours which they have not been trained to deal with.

Conference calls on the health service group executive, to work with appropriate service groups and the National Disabled Members Committee to:

- 1) Use the Alzheimer's Society dementia friendly employer's guide as a basis for encouraging NHS employers to become dementia friendly employers.
- 2) Promote the Open University/UNISON one day workshop within NHS employers.
- 3) Raise awareness of dementia and encourage health activists and members to become dementia friends and or champions.

Agenda for Change, pay, terms and conditions

21. Refreshing Agenda for Change

Conference calls on the Health Service Group Executive to reject any proposals that lead to a detriment to our members.

22. Effect of NHS Trust organisational change and the impact for Agenda for Change

In today's climate, within the NHS, changes are constantly happening to turn it into a profit making business, and mergers, staff reductions, and other distressing actions have all occurred. Consultations with staff appear to take place on an ad-hoc basis and lack full and meaningful discussions and negotiation.

Staff experience new challenges on an almost daily basis as reorganisations take place, jobs are frequently down-banded and staff devalued, leading to reduction in pay, poor pay protection offers, and the knock on effect this has, along with staffing numbers being reduced. All this, to achieve cost cutting targets.

The formal matching processes appear to be on a hit and miss basis, with no planning or forethought for existing knowledge and people skills. Trusts need to carefully consider the matching process overall, and be especially aware of current structures, as it has been known for staff to end up being managed by those who were their staff. Conference calls upon the Health Service Executive Committee to:

- 1) Prepare an education programme for Members, Stewards and Agenda for Change Practitioners, to ensure they are aware of how to address terms and conditions issues by clearly defining how to negotiate the Agenda for Change pay band moves and/or down-banding situations, to ensure best possible deals.
- 2) Encourage Trusts to organise structured consultation meetings, and support the staff members in the opportunity for a choice of moves to other areas of their Trust, for those affected.
- 3) Train stewards to liaise with managers within Trusts to be mindful of financial situations, after changes that staff frequently find themselves in, such as mortgages, loans and travel, and to ensure financial advice is available to such affected staff in areas such as these, via UNISON's There For You or an Employee's Assistance Programme.

23. Pay Campaign

The Joseph Rowntree Foundation Report (December 2016) has shown that 7.4million people who are in working households are living in poverty. The policies of this government, including the public sector pay cap, do nothing to solve this.

Reporting on the Chancellor Philip Hammond's Autumn Statement 2016, the TUC Worksmart webpage has made clear that:

"The public sector pay cap is also a serious problem that has a negative effect on public services and the people who work in them. Public sector workers are still more than £2,000 per year worse off than they were in 2010 in real terms, as a result of years of pay freezes and caps. This statement didn't change that."

Conference condemns the continuation of the 1% pay cap for Public Sector Health workers.

Conference believes that the Health Service Group's Pay Campaign should present a clear demand on pay:

- 1) To win the Healthcare Conference policy of a £10 hour minimum wage and
- 2) To win no less than a £1 an hour pay increase

Conference believes that a serious campaign to mobilise members to win such a claim would enthuse and mobilise members and could be used to co-ordinate a campaign across all four countries.

Conference calls on the Health Service Group Executive to present a pay claim that includes:

- a) A £10 hour minimum wage
- b) A minimum wage increase of £1 an hour

Furthermore, Conference calls on the Health Service Group Executive to plan a co-ordinated campaign across all four countries and to mobilise the membership in support of the claim.

24. Tackling Low Pay across our NHS

This Conference congratulates UNISON Scotland in their outstanding success in tackling the scourge of low pay in the health service. From October 1st 2016 all staff employed in NHS Scotland on Agenda for Change Band One had their posts reviewed and all were offered Band Two posts with only very minor adjustments to their roles. This resulted in over 97% of staff on Band One transferring to Band Two with the exceptions being those staff who due to working very limited hours would have lost out via social security entitlements.

2017 Health Care Service Group Conference UNISON PRELIMINARY AGENDA

This pay increase now means that the lowest paid full time member of staff in NHS Scotland is in receipt of a salary £3,000 more than the equivalent member of staff in the NHS elsewhere in the United Kingdom.

UNISON Scotland led the way in tackling low pay in the NHS by getting rid of the lowest pay points and have now extended that by, to all intents and purposes, abolishing Pay Band One in NHS Scotland.

A £3,000 pay increase makes a real difference in the lives of our hard working, dedicated members who have committed their working lives to public services, and are there for people when they are at their most vulnerable.

UNISON Scotland achieved this major pay rise at the same as maintaining its no compulsory redundancy agreement and a lifetime Organisational Change agreement at real time levels without the need for one days industrial action. It was achieved by the day to day hard work of UNISON lay activists, UNISON officers and UNISON members. It was done by recruiting and actively organising across the service so that employers were aware that UNISON were the voice of their staff and that continued unfair treatment of those staff that the NHS relied on would be met by a united response.

UNISON echo the remarks of the Scottish Cabinet Secretary for Health at UNISON's Scottish Nursing Conference that "No-one should be in any doubt that UNISON were the driving force behind this agreement."

This Conference is fully aware that the negotiating priorities for each of the four countries in the United Kingdom is a matter for the Health Committees of those countries, but we call on the Service Group Executive to work with the Scottish Health Committee in ensuring that all parts of UNISON can benefit from the strategies adopted in Scotland and that tackling low pay should be seen as the Service Group Executive's number one priority in future pay discussions.

25. Eradication of Band 1

Conference congratulates Scotland for agreeing the eradication of Band 1, with suitable protection for those not wishing to move to Band 2. This is a major step forward in dealing with low pay.

In Cymru/Wales we are beginning those negotiations, but given the difficult financial situation we will be stronger if all devolved nations had the same goal.

This conference, therefore, agrees that the eradication of Band 1 will be part of each pay bargaining strategy across the devolved nations and to facilitate this, UNISON will assist by providing the research and financial data as required.

2017 Health Care Service Group Conference UNISON PRELIMINARY AGENDA

26. Living wage: supporting branches to win and maintain Living Wage status

Conference notes the success of branches who have previously won a pay rise for their lowest paid staff through Living Wage campaigns. Their successes should be celebrated and used to inspire other branch-led campaigns across the country.

However, whilst increases to the Living Wage are to be welcomed, conference notes that some employers have fallen short of making an ongoing commitment to maintaining Living Wage compliance year on year. In these cases branches are faced with the challenge of having to mount a fresh campaign each time the Living Wage is updated.

Conference stands with all branches campaigning for the Living Wage – whether for the first time, or fighting for the annual uplift.

Although it is clear that Agenda for Change poses no barrier to organisations becoming Living Wage Foundation employers, the Health Group needs to do more work to ensure stewards and activists have all the tools at their disposal to win the argument and run successful campaigns that embed the Living Wage in perpetuity.

Conference also notes that it may not always be the case that Living Wage Foundation rates are higher than the lowest rate of Agenda for Change. Conference notes that, as of November 2016, some Agenda for Change HCAS rates are still higher than the London Living Wage. If employers in those areas were to “offer” the living wage this would be a reduction in pay for lower-earning staff. We must be vigilant and ensure that employers cannot hide breaches of Agenda for Change behind a “Living Wage Employer” badge.

Additionally, Conference welcomes the continued commitment of the Welsh and Scottish Governments to the Living Wage in the NHS in those countries.

Conference calls on the Service Group Executive to:

- 1) Continue to develop guidance and resources for branches that want to campaign for Living Wage.
- 2) Support branches to win “rolling” Living Wage commitments, in which employers pledge to pay the Living Wage on an ongoing basis, rather than simply matching the amount in any one year.
- 3) Provide clear guidance on the relationship between Agenda for Change and the Living Wage, and support branches to resist employer tricks where the Living Wage would actually be a reduction in Agenda for Change conditions.
- 4) Provide support to branches and activists in understanding the difference between the Living Wage Foundation wage, and the Government’s re-labelled minimum wage.

2017 Health Care Service Group Conference UNISON PRELIMINARY AGENDA

27. Thames Valley Cost of Living campaign

This Conference notes that NHS pay has not kept up with the cost of living. With a fall in pay of approximately 10-12% many regions are having major staffing and recruitment problems. Especially in London and the South East where the cost of living tends to be much higher. For example, Oxfordshire is the most expensive place outside of London in terms of housing costs.

This Conference recognises that some employers are beginning to pay outer London allowances in the South East region to aid recruitment of staff. This Conference has recognised this as a major issue and has now developed a cost of living supplement campaign, with Berkshire, Oxfordshire and Bucks.

This Conference believes that all staff should receive the allowance if implemented rather than allowing the employers to choose who they give it to as is happening at present. This Conference asks the Service Group Executive for support for this campaign and requests that the Service Group Executive:

- 1) Publicises and assists in building this campaign in the south East
- 2) Supports any other countries, regions or branches where the cost of living is a detriment to staff recruitment or those that work in those regions.

Bucks Healthcare and Community

28. Apprentices in the NHS

Conference notes that the apprenticeship levy and the adoption of targets by the four country administrations will drive an upsurge of apprenticeships in the NHS.

The imperative for NHS organisations to recoup the money they are now required to pay into the levy means that apprenticeships will become a major means of training and developing existing staff, and hiring new staff.

Conference welcomes UNISON's work to expose the wide variation of very low pay rates used by NHS employers when hiring staff as apprentices. Conference also welcomes UNISON's detailed negotiators' guide covering pay and conditions, and how the union can support and organise apprentices. UNISON's work has helped push this issue up the agenda of the NHS Staff Council.

Conference supports the use of high quality apprenticeships in the NHS, and welcomes their potential as a means of bringing into the NHS a more diverse workforce, with greater opportunities for disadvantaged groups.

However, Conference is concerned about the effects of the levy, the NHS funding crisis, and the imposition of targets on employers for apprenticeship starts. This combination could lead some employers to view apprenticeships as a means of replacing existing posts with a source of cheap labour. This is a particular danger as many employers currently fail to negotiate or consult with Staff Sides on pay and conditions for apprentices, and continue to employ them on non- Agenda for Change terms.

2017 Health Care Service Group Conference UNISON PRELIMINARY AGENDA

Conference believes that apprenticeships in the NHS should be a beacon of quality able to compete with gold standard apprenticeships elsewhere in the economy. But that will not be achieved by continuing to pay rates as low as £3.40 an hour to apprentices who are fulfilling valuable roles providing or supporting delivery of patient care.

Conference calls on the Service Group Executive to:

- 1) Continue to promote UNISON's negotiating guidance to branches and organising staff including offering briefings and updates via regional and service group structures.
- 2) Seek agreement via the Staff Council on a comprehensive nationally agreed Agenda for Change framework for apprentice pay and conditions.
- 3) Monitor the impact of the levy and targets for apprenticeship starts, on staffing and on resources available for wider training and continuing development.
- 4) Seek opportunities to represent UNISON members' views by participating in initiatives to develop new apprenticeships in a variety of occupational groups.
- 5) Work with UNISON's Learning and Organising Services to ensure that branches, including union learning reps, are supported to recruit and organise apprentices.

Health Service Group Executive

29. Fair treatment and fair pay for Apprentices in the NHS

Conference will be well aware of the ever increasing numbers of Apprentices being employed within the NHS. There is concern that Apprentices, in some cases, are being used as a cheaper source of labour, sometimes on minimum wage, instead of being paid the correct rate for the substantive post, as per the Agenda for Change agreement.

It is believed that NHS employers are in fact acting outside of an agreement which they themselves signed up to. When Agenda for Change was designed and established, it was acknowledged that new staff would usually be on a lower rate of pay initially, recognising that it would take time to become fully competent in the role. There would then be pay progression by increments towards the top of the pay band, which is the correct rate once a person is fully trained and competent to undertake the duties required of their post.

The new Government legislation from April 2017 will see employers charged a not inconsiderable levy on their wages bill, which should be used to provide training for staff. Because this levy is very high, it can be perceived that NHS employers will choose to take on more apprentices, probably on minimum wage, because there has been no enforcement of the AFC national agreement.

If there is no national agreement which UNISON representatives can require employers to keep to, then we are likely to be faced with all different kinds of local pay rates, depending on what individual branches and staff sides are able to negotiate locally.

2017 Health Care Service Group Conference UNISON PRELIMINARY AGENDA

This situation is far from satisfactory and therefore Conference calls on the Service Group Executive to work with the bodies named below, and any other appropriate bodies which it deems appropriate, to:

- 1) Through the Staff council, start discussions and find a resolution with NHS Employers about this situation.
- 2) Negotiate an understanding that Apprentices must be employed under the Agenda for Change agreement, as applied to all non-medical staff, thereby reducing the need for disputes, and ensuring that Apprentices are not used as a cheaper alternative for substantive posts.
- 3) Make sure that in particular, AFC Bands 1-4 receive the bulk of the levy fund monies paid by employers, to be spent on adequate training programs to support them in their roles.
- 4) Explore in conjunction with the NEC, and/ or other appropriate bodies, the pay situation for Apprentices in other Sectors, with a view to stopping exploitation of this group of members.

East Lancashire Health

30. Apprentices in the NHS and NHS Blood and Transplant

UNISON has had many discussions with NHSBT about the introduction of apprenticeships in the workplaces.

Our NHSBT national forum has welcomed NHSBT as an employer making apprenticeships available as long as:

- 1) These are proper apprenticeships leading to qualifications and substantive jobs with real training and development.
- 2) Staff on apprenticeships are taken on contracts employing them on the NHS nationally agreed terms and conditions of employment and pay so that they are not used as cheap labour or exploited.
- 3) There are substantive jobs for apprentices to take up having passed their training and having had their competency to undertake this work agreed.

Conference utterly condemns all NHS employers who are using apprenticeships as an opportunity to recruit low paid staff into temporary jobs to provide extra cover as a result of cuts. In particular, Conference calls for complete opposition to any NHS employers advertising apprenticeships on wages as low as £3.40 per hour. Conference believes that there should be a national agreement negotiated with the NHS employers on apprenticeships setting out the safeguards that we need to protect, in particular, young workers from exploitation.

2017 Health Care Service Group Conference UNISON PRELIMINARY AGENDA

31. NHS Blood and Transplant - holiday pay

In 2010 a new term of the National Agenda for Change agreement was made ensuring that staff receive allowances such as unsocial hours and on call payments when they take annual leave.

It came to light in NHSBT in 2015 as a result of persistence of NHSBT Northern UNISON branch members and their representative that this agreement had not been properly implemented. Our national representative for the area highlighted this to all UNISON branches within the NHSBT. We discovered that many of the UNISON members were receiving basic pay and not unsocial hours payments or on-call payments when taking their leave.

UNISON branches in NHSBT – through their National Forum- took this up with the employer and discussions took place over a 12 month period. The starting position from the employers (NHSBT) for those staff affected was only offered for losses in a one year period.

UNISON led the negotiations – in conjunction with all the other recognised trade unions. The unions involved in these negotiations threatened legal action against NHSBT. This brought all parties around the table which led to an agreement being reached which gave much larger amounts of back pay to staff alongside an agreement to recalculate all payments back to 2010 where staff produced the evidence that they had not received proper holiday pay since that time.

The agreement was endorsed by a national ballot run by each trade union. Our UNISON members voted nearly unanimously to accept the agreed way forward. Many hundreds of UNISON members received large sums of back pay in their pay just before Christmas 2016.

Conference calls upon UNISON to draw this work of our union negotiators in NHSBT to the attention of all branches across the UK employed on Agenda for Change and we urge all branches to check that their own employer has been properly paying holiday pay in accordance with the national agreement which states very clearly that:

“pay during annual leave will include regularly paid supplements including recruitment and retention premia, payments for work outside normal hours and high cost area supplements.”

Conference urges all UNISON health branches to check that this agreement is being properly applied and implemented.

NHSBT Northern

32. Working patterns - choice not compulsion

Conference commends the Health SGE for producing, in response to a 2015 Health Conference motion, a helpful ‘Literature Review on the Impact of 12 hour shifts’.

The review concludes that the NHS workforce is too diverse and the data too limited, to ‘produce clarity on the positive and negative benefits, both real and perceived, of long-hour shifts’.

2017 Health Care Service Group Conference UNISON PRELIMINARY AGENDA

Although there may be value in comparing (in this case) the benefits of one type of shift (12-hour) with another ('traditional' 7.5-hour), this is not a case in which 'one size fits all'. Members benefit from a choice between different shift patterns.

Conference notes that members most commonly seek UNISON help when management are proposing change to existing work patterns/shifts.

Such changes can feel very threatening to members, as invariably they have established arrangements already in place that fit their home lives and commitments around their existing work patterns or vice versa.

Some obvious factors include:

- 1) Travel to work; including availability of public transport, access to on-site parking etc.
- 2) Having opportunities for a 'social life'; including simple 'personal preference'.
- 3) 'Caring' commitments; notably childcare responsibilities, where fitting around 'school hours' is often important.
- 4) Partners' work patterns – for time off 'together' or alternatively time off 'opposite one another' for childcare purposes.
- 5) Health factors and limitations; increasingly including 'ageing workforce' factors.

Individuals' and/or their family's arrangements can be incredibly complex and vulnerable to change. Such changes are more likely than ever as the NHS comes under pressure to deliver 'seven-day working'. With consultants and junior doctors more likely to be doing 'extended day' or weekend working, our members are coming under pressure to follow suit.

It is clear that at national level, the NHS has not been adequately funded to provide the additional staffing required for seven-day working. There is a clear risk that the existing NHS staff workforce risks simply being 'spread more thinly' and this pressure is likely to be present, but 'hidden' in extended day/week working changes proposed at ward and department level.

So our members will be looking to UNISON representatives for support and protection against 'impossible' workloads combined with unwelcome changes to shift patterns.

Conference also notes that implementation of computerised systems such as 'e-Roster' or 'Health Roster' has been associated with an increasingly 'rigid' approach to flexible working patterns.

Conference calls on the SGE, working with the NHS Staff Council where appropriate, to produce specific guidance to equip members and UNISON activists to support members facing shift changes.

Recruitment and Organising

33. Make UNISON the number one choice for healthcare workers

This Conference recognises the importance of all NHS trade unions co-operating in order to defend the NHS, to protect jobs within all areas of health care and defending hard won staff terms and conditions. Conference also recognises however that UNISON have been the driving force behind the trade union campaigns behind protecting the NHS and NHS workers.

This Conference recognises and appreciates the lay leadership role of the Health Service Group Executive over the past years while at the same time coming to the view that now is the time to launch a new and significant recruitment campaign amongst NHS and outsourced staff.

Conference recognises that strategies in relation to recruitment and retention are multi-faceted but that it is the hard work done day in and day out by UNISON activists on behalf of our members in being available for them, representing them and negotiating positively on their behalf which is central to recruitment and retention.

In the past few years it is has been UNISON who has led the fight to defend the NHS and has delivered success stories such as the Band One Review in Scotland which put almost three thousand pounds per annum in our members pockets. This Conference calls on the Service Group Executive to ensure that UNISON fully publicise such success stories so that members and non-members are fully aware who the leading progressive trade union is in the NHS.

UNISON is undoubtedly the strongest and most effective trade union in the NHS. We have achieved that because of our successes, because we have won the trust of our members and most importantly because of our strengths in recruitment and retention. It is only through a vigorous and successful recruitment and retention strategy that UNISON will maintain its rightful place as the lead NHS trade union.

To this end Conference calls upon the Service Group Executive to liaise with the Health Committees of the devolved nations and English Regions and to set up a four country Working Group which will examine all of the recruitment success stories and strategies within health in UNISON, such as the resource centres set up by Lothian Health Branch in order to construct a specific recruitment plan for UNISON Health. This recruitment plan should have at its heart the message that UNISON values the whole team approach to successful health care and effective trade union organisation and that UNISON should be the number one choice for all health care workers.

34. Campaign to defend our NHS

This Conference welcomes the significant improvements in the health of people in Scotland including overall health, life expectancy and survival rates for a number of conditions such as heart disease. The 2016 Audit Scotland report however suggests that the NHS in Scotland is entering a period where the most important of all public services is under threat financially.

Scottish Health Boards are being required to make £492 million in cash savings in an attempt to balance the books in the financial year 2016/17. This is at a time when the drugs budget has increased by 10% between 2012/13 and 2014/15 and is predicted to rise by between 5% and 10% each and every year. It is at a time when the Agency staff spend has risen to £175 million pounds a year and the temporary staffing bill has almost doubled. This is on top of areas regularly working under-staffed because vacancies are not being filled and are not being even filled on a shift by shift basis. In Health Visiting for example the unfilled vacancy rate is now running at 9%. Although there is clear evidence that staff shortages and a reliance on temporary staff is detrimental to patient care nothing is being done to tackle this problem.

The closing of hospital beds before fully funded and comprehensive community services are in place is also putting the most vulnerable in our society at risk with the biggest area of concern being an increasing elderly population who are seeing cuts in health care provision at the same time as an underfunded home care service.

While the opening paragraphs of this motion have highlighted concerns around the NHS in Scotland this Conference recognises that issues of under-funding, increased service demand and the needs of an ageing population will apply right through the United Kingdom.

This Conference recognises the outstanding campaigning work done by UNISON and the Service Group Executive in highlighting the need for an appropriately funded health care service publicly funded if we wish to be able to maintain our rightful claim that the NHS is a world leader in health care and is a service that we can all be rightly proud of. To that end this Conference calls on the Service Group Executive to work with the Health Committees of the Four Nations and with Regional Health Committees to:

- 1) Produce clear and detailed blueprints for the future provision of health care across the four countries of the United Kingdom.
- 2) That the overarching principle of those blueprints will be NHS services publicly funded, publicly owned and staffed by public employees.
- 3) To Work with the representatives of UNISON's General Political Fund and Labour Link to produce materials in support of our NHS.

- 4) To Examine the Partnership Model of Industrial relations in Scotland which has delivered significant gains for NHS staff at the same time as avoiding the privatising of public services.
- 5) To Lobby the Governments and senior opposition parties in all of the four countries in the United Kingdom to engage in serious, meaningful discussion with UNISON about the future of health care provision.

35. Shared Services in the NHS

Conference notes that that in the wake of continued NHS austerity, pressure to 'share' corporate and other functions across multiple provider organisations has become more prevalent across the UK. To date, experience of these shared services initiatives has been mixed. In England, the marketised nature of the NHS has resulted in a strong focus on establishing joint ventures and private companies; while in the other devolved nations the emphasis has been on sharing services that are retained within the public sector.

Conference notes with concern the National Audit Office's 2016 investigation into Cabinet Office's Next Generation Shared Services strategy that sought to reduce the civil service running costs by outsourcing "back office" functions to two private shared services companies. However, the National Audit Office found that to date the project has been poorly managed and has not achieved value for money. Conference recognises these valuable lessons learnt from elsewhere in the public sector. Conference also notes with caution the work being undertaken in England by NHS Improvement who are instructing NHS Trusts to formulate and implement plans to merge corporate services across geographical areas, starting with those in four 'pathfinder' areas. Conference is clear that any attempt to use shared services as a guise to cut operational services' jobs will be met with strong resistance.

Our flagship One Team campaign argues that staff outside of clinical roles play an important part in delivery of health care. As part of the One Team campaign, UNISON should make the case that the best and most efficient use of NHS resources is delivered by keeping all the functions required to organise and deliver care retained inside the health services. Conference therefore resolves to promote public-sector models for all proposed shared services projects, and oppose proposals to move functions from the NHS to private companies.

Conference therefore calls on the Health Service Group Executive to:

- 1) Use the One Team Campaign to promote the benefits of retaining 'corporate' services within the NHS
- 2) Where shared services models are proposed, branches and regions should work with the UNISON centre to actively promote NHS bids/options, and ensure that staff retain NHS employment on Agenda for Change terms
- 3) Provide support to regions and branches organising against the privatisation of corporate shared services ensuring that recruitment activity is included in plans

2017 Health Care Service Group Conference UNISON PRELIMINARY AGENDA

- 4) Provide support to regions and branches campaigning against job cuts that are a result of the creation of shared services.
- 5) Use branch and other communication channels to distribute learning about the spread of the shared services agenda, taking particular note to compare and contrast the approach taken in each of the four UK countries.
- 6) Work through national and regional partnership structures to insist on local trade union involvement in any discussions about corporate shared services, using this as an opportunity to press for national commitments to keep staff and services in the NHS.

36. Nottingham University Hospitals and Carillion

Conference congratulates the Nottingham University Hospitals (NUH) and Allied Services branch, UNISON East Midlands and Nottinghamshire Keep Our NHS Public for the successful campaigning that had led to the announcement that:

“The NUH Trust Board continues to be concerned about the performance of the Carillion contract. The Board has therefore decided that significant changes to the arrangements with Carillion are required. NUH and Carillion are jointly exploring a managed exit from the Carillion contract. NUH and Carillion are commencing discussions to determine next steps. Estates and Facilities staff will remain employed by Carillion until such time as future arrangements are agreed by both parties, which we anticipate to be January 2017. We will continue to keep our patients, partners and external stakeholders informed as there are further developments”

Conference calls on the Health Service Group Executive to:

- 1) send a letter of congratulations to Nottingham University Hospitals and Allied Services branch, UNISON East Midlands and Nottinghamshire Keep Our NHS Public.
- 2) offer support to branches that are campaigning against outsourcing or campaigning for outsourced functions to be brought back in-house.

37. Automation and effects on NHS Workforce

Conference notes the report published in the autumn by Deloitte, highlighting the potential of automation to reduce the workforce of the public sector.

Within the NHS, areas which were highlighted were medical records, clerical functions, finance and procurement.

Early pilots of the automated systems which were built on the premise that there would be a reduction in the workforce and this is a cost saving. However, once implemented these schemes meant that to provide a quality service to patients they required more staff and these staff to be more knowledgeable and skilled than had previously been expected.

Additionally, automation of roles such as portering and laundry now require staff to be confident in the use of computer technology. The staff who work in these areas are some of the lowest paid across the public sector.

Conference believes that the level of computer knowledge to carry out these roles meet the criteria for a level 2 at knowledge, training and experience (KTE) using Agenda for Change.

Conference recognises the work of UNISON Scotland to secure band 2 as a minimum for all NHS Scotland staff.

Conference calls on the Service Group Executive to challenge the myth that automation saves money and highlight the increase in skills the automation requires from our members.

NHS Service Transformation – supporting members and influencing change

38. Supporting members through service transformation

Conference notes that across the UK there are a number of current initiatives seeking to bring about service transformation. These include, but are not limited to, Sustainability and Transformation Plans (STPs) in England, the ten year vision for health and social care based on the Bengoa report in Northern Ireland, and further moves towards more integrated health and social care in Scotland and Wales.

Conference remains deeply concerned that, as a direct result of the actions of the UK Conservative government, service transformation across the UK is taking place at a time of prolonged austerity with the NHS experiencing the poorest funding settlement for a generation.

Conference notes that there are many challenges for staff from such reforms, including cuts to services, the threat of privatisation, mergers and the use of shared services, issues around harmonised terms and conditions in integrated workplaces, and attempts to deskill or downband staff.

Conference reiterates UNISON policy in favour of the principle of greater health and social care integration, but with a number of important caveats around the need for integration not to be used as a cover for cuts, the need for full patient and staff engagement, and crucially the need for integration not be used to level down pay, terms and conditions in a race to the bottom.

Similarly, Conference notes that UNISON members have always been open to discussing new ways of working and to consider change if this is demonstrably in the interests of patients. However, where change is just a smokescreen for cuts, privatisation or attacks on our members' pay, terms and conditions, Conference is adamant that UNISON must continue to act decisively and firmly to defend jobs, terms and conditions and the services that our members provide.

Conference asserts that the most effective and enduring innovations in our health services have come when workers and trade unions are properly involved and engaged, as well as the public. Conference therefore expresses its anger that too often this has not been the case, with the secrecy and lack of transparency around the development of STPs in England being a particularly worrying recent example.

Conference notes the contrast between this approach in England and the attempts in Northern Ireland to root plans for change more clearly in partnership working and the fact that the Bengoa report seeks to use set criteria to evaluate changes in the light of clinical evidence and workforce considerations.

Similarly with shared services, Conference notes the differences between England, where this is too often based around private companies or joint ventures, and the devolved nations, where there has been more of an emphasis on public sector shared services.

Conference notes that while many transformation initiatives may have new names or be promoted as using revolutionary approaches to achieve change, in many cases they simply represent cuts, privatisation or threats to terms and conditions so the way in which UNISON responds will need to be rooted in traditional campaigning against these threats.

However, given the lack of money in the NHS and given the wide geographical spread of such plans, Conference is clear that UNISON branches across the UK must be fully equipped to respond to these challenges.

Conference therefore calls upon the Health SGE to:

- 1) condemn in the strongest possible terms any attempts to use service transformation as a smokescreen for cuts, privatisation or attacks on pay, terms and conditions;
- 2) use every means at the union's disposal to challenge damaging plans – whether in the media, in councils, in Parliament, or through protests and demonstrations;
- 3) challenge plans where there is a lack of evidence for change and consider the use of set criteria to evaluate the feasibility and desirability of plans;
- 4) where shared services are used, campaign for these to be within the public sector and established in such a way that guards against future outsourcing;
- 5) ensure that work takes place with local government colleagues in UNISON to provide a joined-up response where necessary;
- 6) spread best practice from across the UK, both in terms of approaches to service transformation and tactics for challenging damaging plans;
- 7) demand that the workforce is involved from the start in the development and implementation of service transformation plans;

2017 Health Care Service Group Conference UNISON PRELIMINARY AGENDA

- 8) as appropriate, work with the TUC, other trade unions, patient groups and campaigning organisations to build alliances against damaging changes; and
- 9) continue to produce guidance and provide campaigning support where branches are fighting damaging changes.

39. Supporting members through service transformation

Conference notes that across the UK there are a number of current initiatives seeking to bring about service transformation. These include, but are not limited to, Sustainability and Transformation Plans (STPs) in England, the ten year vision for health and social care based on the Bengoa report in Northern Ireland, and further moves towards more integrated health and social care in Scotland and Wales.

Conference remains deeply concerned that, as a direct result of the actions of the UK Conservative government, service transformation across the UK is taking place at a time of prolonged austerity with the NHS experiencing the poorest funding settlement for a generation. Taking this into account and despite the positive spin being put on the STP plans by NHS England the evidence suggest that in most cases they are nothing more than a smoke screen for making the planned NHS savings promised by 2020 and not plans for the improvement of the NHS.

Conference notes that these STP bodies set up to draw up the plans for the 44 'footprints' do not have any formal legal status and it therefore unclear how they can produce plans which will be accountable to both the staff and the users of the services in the particular 'footprint' they are transforming. Bearing in mind this lack of a legal basis, it is also unclear how these STP bodies can facilitate any consultation on the proposed transformation plans.

Conference also notes that there are many challenges for staff from such reforms, including cuts to services, the threat of privatisation, mergers and the use of shared services, issues around harmonised terms and conditions in integrated workplaces, and attempts to deskill or downband staff.

Conference reiterates UNISON policy in favour of the principle of greater health and social care integration, but with a number of important caveats around the need for integration not to be used as a cover for cuts, the need for separate investment in social care not money transferred from the already stretched NHS budgets, the need for full patient and staff engagement, and crucially the need for integration not be used to level down pay, terms and conditions in a race to the bottom.

Similarly, Conference notes that UNISON members have always been open to discussing new ways of working and to consider change if this is demonstrably in the interests of patients. Greater London Region

40. Health and Social Care Integration – Closing the Gap

Conference notes the findings from the recent report identify that here in the North East Combined Authority (NECA) area, the health and wellbeing gap with rest of the UK remains high, facing challenges in cancer, chronic obstructive pulmonary disease (COPD), diabetes, mental health problems and rising levels of excess life expectancy.

The Region is served by a strong hospital network including three Foundation Trusts rated 'outstanding' by the Care Quality Commission and strong partnership between research and healthcare delivery have led to the region being recognised internationally as a leading academic and innovations centre for bioscience research and trials.

However, despite these strong regional health and wellbeing assets, the regions health and wellbeing outcomes remain challenging. Life expectancy and healthy life expectancy for women and men are lower than the national average. Research is showing that a baby born in the NECA area can expect to live more than a decade few years in good health than one born in Richmond on Thames or Wokingham.

Public finance for health and care across the Northern Region is increasing and it is clear that the spend on managing the costs of ill health completely dwarfs that spent on keeping people well. The low spend on preventive activity increases pressures, and the need, to spend on hospital care.

Over the next five years resources are expected to become increasingly constrained through a combination of increased life expectancy and increased complex health and care needs. Social care budgets are under particularly intense pressure, raising serious risks for the health system.

This trend certainly doesn't fit with the NHS England plans for greater efficiencies and savings via the Sustainability and Transformation Plans (STPs). The key priorities in the Region's STPs are focussing around 'Health and Care in our Communities and Neighbourhood' but this can't be delivered without massive increases in funding for health and social care in our area.

This report and the STP Plans are shared via the Local Authority Health and Wellbeing Boards (HWBs) and these discussions are taking place with these system leaders.

The decision-making in the NHS has always had questions asked about the democratic deficit in that decision making. The increasing devolvement of powers to Clinical Commissioning Groups and GPs has increased this deficit and HWBs as proposed have some influence but no real powers.

2017 Health Care Service Group Conference UNISON PRELIMINARY AGENDA

This conference is concerned about the lack of power of HWBs, the democratic deficit in commissioning of health services and the lack of input from trade unions to ensure that the staff voice is heard.

The UNISON document 'Stronger Together – A UNISON Guide to influencing the new NHS' 2012 - provides a great tool for our members to become active in our campaigns to stop damaging cuts and privatisation.

Therefore this Conference instructs the Service Group Executive to:

- 1) Re-emphasise and encourage the role that trade unions can have in influencing and advising HWBs and local partnership forums.
- 2) Share the UNISON Guide – 'Stronger Together – A UNISON Guide to influencing the new NHS' with branches to reiterate its continued relevance.
- 3) Develop political organising training so our members build relationships to make our influence count.
- 4) Support and encourage regional cross sector discussions within branches to develop HWB links to engage with their local government counterparts with a view to influencing their local HWBs.
- 5) Work with Learning and Organising Services to provide scrutiny and HWB training to representatives in branches to ensure there is sufficient expertise to deal with the issues we will face.

41. Health and Social Care Integration and New Commissioning and Organisational Models

Health Conference welcomes the growing acknowledgement in the public policy discourse that our health and social care systems are inter-related and interdependent.

Health Conference believes that, where there are problems with the availability and quality of social care provision, the knock-on effects are felt in the NHS – both in increased demand for front-end health services and greater difficulties in discharging patients into the community.

Health Conference notes with concern the systemic underfunding of council-commissioned social care services caused by years of central government cuts to local authority budgets.

Health Conference further notes with concern that the social care sector is characterised by predominantly low-paid private sector employment and a funding regime that involves user charges and means testing.

Health Conference notes that:

2017 Health Care Service Group Conference UNISON PRELIMINARY AGENDA

- 1) NHS commissioners are increasingly working together with council commissioners in taking more joined-up decisions about health and social care provision.
- 2) NHS provider organisations are increasingly becoming part of various new organisational forms ('new models of care') that involve them more closely in the provision of social care services.

Health Conference believes that these moves toward more integrated commissioning and organisational arrangements hold some potential to improve services through making the patient experience more seamless, treating more people in (or closer to) their own homes, and improving work on prevention.

However, in a context of underfunding for both health and social care, Health Conference is concerned that the current policy direction also holds threats including:

- a) More expensive acute services could be decommissioned to meet cost targets before improved community provision is both in place and proven in practice to reduce the need for acute care. This could lead to significant unmet need.
- b) Efforts to cut costs may involve the integration of so-called 'back-office' functions that could lead to job losses and could prove to be a false economy where medical staff are required to undertake more administrative work.
- c) Where staff on NHS and council terms and conditions are brought together there can be complications in regard to a number of employment issues such as job evaluation and continuity of service.

Health Conference calls on the Service Group Executive to:

- i) Provide branches with information about the various new organisational forms emerging such as integrated care organisations.
- ii) Collate good practice from around the country.
- iii) Issue comprehensive advice to branches and regions on equal pay issues where staff are doing similar work drawn from the same funding source.
- iv) Work with the local government service group to agree a 'one union' approach to proposals
- v) Develop a bargaining strategy to defend and extend NHS terms and conditions in new integrated care organisations, and to resist the further privatisation of NHS services.

42. Sustainability and Transformation Plans

Conference is hugely concerned that the plans by NHS England to develop Sustainability and Transformation Plans (STPs) have to date had no local involvement of the key groups and stakeholders who will be affected by these plans.

2017 Health Care Service Group Conference UNISON PRELIMINARY AGENDA

Local politicians, trade unions and more importantly local communities have been excluded from all discussions and initial consultations on the Plans which NHS England expects to be finalised and approved in early 2017.

While STPs may well create opportunities for improved health care there is a real concern that these will be used to close the NHS funding gap and site closures, shared services and mergers could be the outcome.

In the Northern region we have structures in place via our UNISON Branch Area Forums and Area Public Service Alliance Groups to discuss these developments, and to encourage the participation of our lay people to influence the key decision-makers. This work also carries through to our Labour Link work with local Politicians.

This Conference calls on the Service Group Executive to call on NHS England and the STP to commit to an open and transparent engagement with the all stakeholders in the community along with the appropriate trade unions and that a revised realistic timescale for consultation is introduced.

Northern Region

43. Sustainability and Transformation Plans (STP's)

Conference notes that Sustainability and transformation plans (STPs) are plans for the future health and care services in England and were to support the NHS to deliver the changes set out in the '5 Year Forward View'.

They first appeared in planning guidance at the end of 2015 and their original purpose was to:

- 1) Improve care quality and efficiency
- 2) Develop new models of care
- 3) Promote prevention and public health

These could be seen as laudable aims and indeed there was the positive prospect that they could potentially signal a decisive shift from the market place which the Health and Social Care Act 2012 put at the centre of the legislation by the need for collaboration rather than competition between organisations.

Conference further notes (and will not be surprised) however that these aims were quickly subverted and the emphasis shifted to focus on how STPs can bring the NHS into financial balance through rigid central control exemplified by the 'financial reset' in the middle of 2016.

This has manifested itself in their development being in secret including:

- a) No meaningful engagement with clinicians and frontline staff
- b) No involvement of patients and the public (central diktat was to resist freedom of information requests!)

2017 Health Care Service Group Conference UNISON PRELIMINARY AGENDA

- c) Extremely variable engagement of Local Government partners
- d) Impossible timescales
- e) Further increase in the use of management consultants

These plans are the only 'game in town' at the moment and as such we need to engage head on with the challenges that arise.

Conference therefore resolves through the Service Group Executive to take a twin track approach to this by:

- i) Concentrating a campaign on STPs to highlight the chronic underfunding of the Health and Care system which undermines this whole policy (leading to the totally unacceptable developments outlined above).
- ii) Making our opposition clear to a 'cuts' agenda by taking the lead in emerging campaigns with the growing body of opposition to these plans as they become clearer.
- iii) Ensuring branches through their staff side are engaging in SPF forums (as per National Social Partnership Forum guidance) to protect our members interests when system wide strategies including workforce are being developed. We well remember a previous area strategy towards pay – the 'Pay Cartel' which was developed in isolation.

This Conference needs to send a loud and clear message that these plans are doomed to fail if the underlying issue of funding is not addressed and UNISON will campaign vigorously against any cuts agenda.

South West Region

44. Sustainability and Transformation Plans in England and the Funding Crisis in Our NHS

Health Conference notes with alarm the growing crisis of underfunding in our NHS. The King's Fund has reported that the share of Gross Domestic Product (GDP) spent on health has dropped from 8.8% in 2009, to 7.3% in 2014/15, and is projected to be just 6.6 percent in 2020.

Conference condemns these cuts that do not match the public's spending priorities and are the root cause of the increasing work pressures on our members.

Health Conference notes that the crisis is such that public calls for more funding have been made by NHS Providers' Chief Executive Chris Hopson, Chair of the House of Commons Health Select Committee Sarah Wollaston, and even former Health Secretary Andrew (now Lord) Lansley.

It is in this context of underfunding that NHS England has set up 44 newly-defined sub-regional areas to develop 'Sustainability and Transformation Plans' (STPs). NHS providers, NHS commissioners and local authorities have been set the task of formulating plans to integrate health and social care services for their 'footprint' area.

2017 Health Care Service Group Conference UNISON PRELIMINARY AGENDA

Health Conference believes that sub-regional planning of this type is an important and useful method of organising services – where it relies on collaboration rather than competition.

However, Health Conference condemns this STP process because:

- 1) Decision-making is being done without public scrutiny and without clear lines of democratic accountability.
- 2) The funding environment and the requirement for STPs to make a combined saving of some £22bn in England means that this is a process of planning for cost reductions rather than for service improvements.
- 3) Some STP plans include proposals to privatise clinical support services and “back office” admin; and to establish Accountable Care Organisations (ACOs), the model preferred by US private healthcare, to manage all care in a locality, ACOs could themselves be privatised.
- 4) The hospital reconfigurations, A&E downgrades, and transfers of care from the acute to the community sector, are not based on rigorous evidence from peer-reviewed evaluations of pilot studies; they are a massive gamble driven by the Treasury.

Health Conference is particularly concerned that inadequate funding will result in the STPs leading to local controversies about where the deepest cuts to services should take place. Conference believes that there is a danger that public attention could be distracted from the true cause of the cuts – decisions taken by central government to underfund and privatise the NHS.

Health Conference calls on the Health Service Group Executive to:

- a) Campaign to highlight the Government’s underfunding of the NHS.
- b) Work with branches and regions in efforts to keep the focus of public anger at service reductions and privatisation on central government decisions.
- c) Condemn the lack of openness and transparency in the formation of the STPs
- d) Support branches and regions in strongly opposing proposals which lead to the erosion of health and social care services, reduction of jobs and/or the erosion of terms and conditions, and further privatisation.

North West Region

45. Tackling the underfunding crisis in health and social care

UNISON Health Conference notes the alarming news that the government is encouraging councils to increase council tax in an attempt to fund massive funding gap in health and social care provision.

The King’s Fund has reported that the share of Gross Domestic Product (GDP) spent on health has dropped from 8.8% in 2009, to 7.3% in 2014/15, and is projected to be just 6.6% in 2020.

2017 Health Care Service Group Conference UNISON PRELIMINARY AGENDA

Spending on social care has fallen by over 9% since 2010 and is set to fall below 1% of GDP by 2020. Even if every council added the 2% precept to council tax bills every year for the next four years, there would still be a £2.3bn funding gap.

It is in this context of underfunding that NHS England has set up 44 newly-defined sub-regional areas to develop 'Sustainability and Transformation Plans' (STPs). NHS providers, NHS commissioners and local authorities have been set the task of formulating plans to integrate health and social care services for their 'footprint' area.

UNISON Conference believes:

- a) The funding environment and the requirement for STPs to make a combined saving of some £22bn in England means that this is a process of planning for cost reductions rather than for service improvements.
- b) Decision-making is being done without public scrutiny and without clear lines of democratic accountability.
- c) Private sector employers who provide health services are in a position to get a say in the content of the STP, thereby paving the way to further outsourcing and ultimately the privatisation of health services
- d) UNISON health conference notes with concern that inadequate funding may result in the STPs leading to local controversies about where the deepest cuts to services should take place.
- e) That an increase in council tax to pay for the Social Care underfunding is unfair since funds raised in this way will put pressure on individuals and families who are 'just about managing' instead of targeting those with the most wealth (wealthy individuals and corporations, for instance).

UNISON Health Conference resolves to:

- 1. Campaign to highlight the Government's underfunding of the NHS and social care and the impact on vulnerable service users and the predominantly low-paid female workforce, including supporting local and national protests calling for additional funding for the NHS and social care sectors.
- 2. Oppose local service reductions or closures, and consistently highlight the root cause in the underfunding of services by central government.
- 3. Condemn the lack of openness and transparency in the formation of the STPs and call for public and staff engagement in planning future service provision.
- 4. Use the avenues available at combined authority-level or working jointly with councils to oppose STPs and promote greater investment and better employment standards in social care and health services for all workers.

46. Sustainability and Transformation Plans

Conference opposes the impact of the Sustainability and Transformation Plans (STPs) which are aimed at reducing beds in the acute sector (with no realistic plan to provide the necessary funding to community services), close or downgrade Accident and Emergency Departments, cut staffing levels, merge (so-called) back-office functions and extend privatisation.

Conference calls on the Health Service Group Executive to organise a co-ordinated campaign to oppose any detrimental consequences for staff of the Sustainability and Transformation Plans.

South Derbyshire Healthcare

47. Stop the Programme (STP) of Cuts

This Conference notes that the sustainability and transformation plan (STP) is just another cover for cuts. This has nothing to do with either growth or sustenance.

It is clear to this Conference that now £22 billion of efficiency savings (cuts) can't be found and that the current fashionable word for cuts is sustainability.

The Department of Health has come up with more spin to hide cuts to our NHS. Even the employers state that the NHS is one of the most efficient health services in the world.

This Conference notes that STPs will mean that in Berkshire, Buckinghamshire and Oxfordshire £432 million needs to be found for the anticipated growth in these counties.

Rather than provide these funds, the Government expects Trusts and NHS organisations to identify ways to manage this increased growth. Thus we can expect further attacks on bed numbers, hospitals provisions and staffs' terms and conditions.

This Conference believes STPs should be opposed where it is clear that this is against staff or public interest and that local branches work with the local campaigns that will develop, if they are not already formed to oppose these cuts when they become public.

This Conference calls upon the Service Group Executive to:

- 1) Work together with branches and community associations to assist in publicising these cuts
- 2) Provide information and press contacts to branches and community organisations to expose these cuts
- 3) Support any national calls to lobby and /or assist with developing a national campaign against STPs involving not only unions but also community campaign groups.

2017 Health Care Service Group Conference UNISON PRELIMINARY AGENDA

Motions Ruled Out of Order

The following motions were ruled out of order because they are not sufficiently clear:

Improving Health Member's Representation across NHS Private Employers
(SOCM0002) Submitted by NHS Logistics

Conference regards the importance that all Health members across the NHS are key factors in opposing the continuous fragmentation in the NHS.

Conference recognises Health members are becoming more isolated as more private employers now operate within the NHS. With some of these employers operating draconian sickness absence policies. For example members not being paid sick pay for the first 3 days of absence, which can have a substantial financial effect on members with long term sickness, despite many years of service in the NHS.

Conference notes, National/Regional and Branch Health resources are even more stretched, where members working for private employers require representation and assistance through the application of their employer's sickness absence policy.

In some cases, employers are only releasing stewards/branch officers for representation within their own organisation. Thereby leading stewards/branch officers to use their own time/holidays etc in representing members, who may be employed by a private company.

Conference recognises the importance of the Unison Case form, as an important tool at branch and regional level to ensure members are given the best support and assistance possible. However sometimes members may feel that their particular case has not been given sufficient consideration and support at Branch and Regional level

Conference calls on the Health Service Group Executive;-

- 1 To promote the importance of the Unison Case form for all Unison Health members and certainly those who may feel isolated if working for a private employer in the NHS
- 2 To clarify the process at branch and regional level, such if the member's case is referred to the Region for legal advice. Example this may be whether legal advice has been obtained
- 3 Where there are national private employers across the NHS to report back whether these employers employment practices are draconian, thereby seek to initiate campaign with the relevant regions/branches to improve members terms and conditions.

UNISON PRELIMINARY AGENDA

Terms and Conditions of Service (T&C's)

(SOCM0008) Submitted by Cymru/Wales Region

Our members in Cymru/Wales agreed to temporary changes to T&C's in the last pay agreement in Wales, due to end 31.12.17. This was done in the spirit of partnership working and facilitated the bringing in of the Living Wage in Wales. This is an issue for all our nations; affecting all UNISON Members across the UK.

However, this has had an unintended consequence of many members suffering a severe detriment in pay when sick, particularly in the Welsh Ambulance Service. The Cymru/Wales Regional Health Committee have agreed that we will not support the continuation of this temporary agreement.

Conference resolves therefore, that no changes to terms and conditions of service will be agreed without a full ballot of all members thus supporting Cymru/Wales in their negotiations. Although pay is negotiated within the devolved nations, A4C is still the handbook for our members' terms and conditions, and Conference confirms that this remains the standard for all the devolved nations.

Local Authority Commissioning of Health Services in England

(SOCM0012) Submitted by Yorkshire & Humberside Region

Conference notes the service closures, privatisations, budget and job cuts that have followed the transfer of commissioning responsibility for a range of health services in England from the NHS to Local Authorities.

Whether in learning disability, drug and alcohol or public health services our members have faced redundancy, TUPE transfer and cuts in staffing levels and terms and conditions.

Conference believes that Motion 59 carried at last year's Conference set out the broad picture of what was already happening and notes that it called for work with Regions and the Local Government and Community Service Groups to monitor and publicise what was happening.

Conference believes this work needs to be revisited and stepped up a gear as we are seeing announcements almost every week of contracts awarded by local Councils to private companies such as Virgin Healthcare and Care UK or to commercially driven theoretically not-for profit organisations.

We ask that (if not completed between the submission of motions in December and Conference in April) the Service Group Executive complete a survey of branches and regions and produce both a report on this and campaigning guidelines by October 2017. This should include briefing materials for local councillors, who often do not appear to know what is being done in their name

The following motions were ruled out of order because they could place the union in legal jeopardy:

Brexit and the NHS

(SOC0013) Submitted by Yorkshire & Humberside Region

Conference notes that 'an extra £350 million a week for the NHS' was one of the key planks of the 'Leave' campaign in the EU Referendum, and while this is clearly not happening the 'Leave' vote is having a number of negative effects on the NHS.

- BAME British, EU and other migrant workers have suffered verbal and physical abuse as the Leave vote gave confidence to racists.
- Britain is being seen as a less attractive place to live by EU and other migrant health workers the NHS badly needs to attract to address its long term skills shortages.
- Uncertainty over the future of regulatory frameworks and research funding is having a negative effect on health sciences and the development of new drugs and other treatments.
- The fall in the value of the pound has driven up the cost of many of the drugs and other supplies the NHS needs to import.
- There are calls for NHS workers to conduct more identity / eligibility for treatment checks on our patients.

Conference believes that the NHS is in desperate need of extra funding, and calls upon all those who said that Brexit would mean an extra £350 million per week to stand by this and to publicly argue for substantial extra NHS funding, both now and from 2019 onwards.

Conference rejects however the suggestion that NHS staff should become Immigration Officers, forced to check identify documents of NHS patients in a way that is likely to have an adverse impact on the poorest (1/3 of Britons do not have a Passport, and many of those people don't have a Driving Licence either) on BAME people and on anyone with an East European surname.

Conference therefore resolves:

- To continue to support all our members and other NHS colleagues whether from Britain, the rest of the EU or further afield
- To vociferously lobby Government, MPs and others for the right of all current EU staff working in the NHS to remain, and to seek an ongoing right for health workers to live and work in Britain and across the rest of the EU
- To support non-cooperation with identity and eligibility checks by first contact / clinical members in the NHS.

Co-ordinated High Profile Campaign needed to save the NHS

(SOCM0003) Submitted by NHS Logistics

Conference strongly believes a co-ordinated fight is required to save the NHS.

In an attempt to drive spending on the NHS back to pre-2000 spending levels (which would see one of the lowest spending levels in Europe) the Tory government's latest plan has been to set up 44 footprint areas, in which commissioners and providers of services are expected to come together, in order to draw up drastic cuts in balancing the books of each local health authority by 2020.

These so-called Sustainability and Transformation Plans will draw up the funding gap which is expected to be projected by 2020. Therefore leaving a potential deficit of hundred millions and may be in some cases a billion pounds.

This is despite the fact that there are literally billions allocated by Central Government, to NHS Trusts which at the end of each year, simply go back into the treasury coffers. 44 leaders will be appointed by the CEO of NHS England (Simon Stevens - former Blair advisor) who will have powers to ride roughshod over local people and health organisations wishes.

Whilst the full scale of the plans are yet to be revealed we already know there are plans to close or downsize many hospitals and A&E departments, a massive cut in hospital beds, restricting the rights of access to healthcare services and cuts in staffing.

There is clearly a mood to fight back against the attacks on the NHS. Already we have seen some mass local community campaigns, during the Summer and Autumn month of 2016 developing, such as in the likes of Huddersfield, Chorley, Leicester and Grantham. These community health campaigns are seeking to gain the support of other similar campaigns and with the plans of bringing these campaigns and others together to organise the national demonstration on 4th March 2017 in London.

Last autumn, 2 Labour Councils refused to sign up to their STP Plans, due to the proposed cuts and detrimental effect these will have in their local areas.

Given the threat to jobs and services the trade unions can and must play a key role in the defence of the NHS across the country.

Conference Calls on the Health Service Group Executive

1. To ensure Unison remains at the head of campaigning in opposition to the STPs, which are promoting the cuts/privatisation/ closures of NHS services.

2017 Health Care Service Group Conference

UNISON PRELIMINARY AGENDA

2. Taking the campaign across National, Regional and Local Branch Structures, with the aim of involving local community campaigning groups who share our views.
3. To initiate a national demonstration to support the NHS, working with TUC plus other trade unions/professional health bodies and the growing number of community health campaigns across the country.
4. To campaign through Unison Labour Link structures, for Labour Councils to continue their opposition to the STP and support the Councils, who haven't signed up to their STP plans, which involve cuts, closure and privatisation of services in the NHS.
5. To support UNISON members fighting privatisation, redundancies, downgrading of posts, closure of NHS Services, including organising industrial action where members vote for it.

A pathway for UNISON PAY campaign across the NHS

(SOCM0044) Submitted by UNISON Northern Ireland

Conference notes that UNISON members across the 4 jurisdictions in the NHS have been grappling with an increasing diverse pay pathway. The reality of devolved administrations and devolved health budgets has created real challenges to our union in striving to maintain a unified NHS and striving to protect our members' job security, pay and terms and conditions.

Conference notes that firm steps were taken in 2016 to adopt a whole union pay policy built around challenging the Tory 4 year Public sector pay cap and setting a claim to lift the hourly rate to £10.

We have also embarked on a strategy to refresh Agenda for Change which gives some opportunities for negotiations to continue, provided they are not obstructed by political interference or by a refusal to fund the changes.

Conference recognises that the successful outcome of our whole union policy now requires that clear strategic decisions of how we build this fight back need to be made. Conference also recognises that we need a clear understanding that within the devolved jurisdictions there will be distinct pay and cuts challenges which will have to be fought. This means that we will need an overall coherence around our aims and clear judgement around achieving any gains and resisting any losses.

Conference therefore calls on the Service Group Executive to:

- 1) lead the fight back with a strategy that is multi layered and flexible enough to combine political campaigning and industrial action where capacity permits, and goals that are clear. A simple one size fits all approach or a simplistic reliance on calls to industrial action will not work;
- 2) work with the Health Committees in the 4 jurisdictions to identify a plan, with clear time-scales, which brings pressure to bear on a rolling basis on the politicians in power to respond to fair pay demands (UNISON demand is for a basic rate of £10 per hour) and hold them to public accountability on their responses;

2017 Health Care Service Group Conference

UNISON PRELIMINARY AGENDA

- 3) initiate solidarity industrial action where the capacity to deliver is strong and members are willing to mobilise;
- 4) campaign around a clear message of Lifting the Tory Pay Cap and Winning Fair Pay.

Local Authority Commissioning of health services in England

(SOCM0019) Submitted by South West Yorkshire Partnership Health

Conference notes the range of issues arising from Council commissioning of health services in England set out in Motion 59 carried at Conference in 2016.

The trends identified in that motion have accelerated since then, with a declining Public Health Grant from central government leading many Councils to drastically cut local services such as weight management, sexual health and stop smoking.

A major change since October 2015 has been that responsibility for commissioning Children & Young People's Health and Wellbeing or '0-19' (mainly School Nursing and Health Visiting) has also moved to Councils and we have seen both extensive cuts and a number of privatisations of these services.

One development in Barnsley was the reluctant taking in-house of the 0-19 service when first of all no provider bid within the budget cap set in a tendering process and then the existing NHS provider said it could not provide a service to NHS / CQC standards within the budget offered by the Council.

This led to a transfer of staff from the NHS into a Council which refused to allow unconditional continued membership of the NHS Pension Scheme to transferring staff, many of whom were long-serving nurses with Special Class status early retirement rights. Rather than obtain a GAD certificate - as would apply in TUPE - the Council relied on the Cabinet Office Code of Practice and a legal opinion on the general comparability of the LGPS and NHS pension arrangements. This was used quite cynically by the Council, which did allow continued membership of the NHS scheme where staff signed across to Council terms & conditions. The uncertainty this caused led to around 1 in 3 qualified staff finding jobs elsewhere prior to transfer, leaving key services in one of the poorest areas of the country dangerously overstretched.

2017 Health Care Service Group Conference UNISON PRELIMINARY AGENDA

Conference:

1/ notes the need for greater publicity about what is happening in these areas, and repeats the request set out in Motion 59 last year (if not completed between the submission of motions in December and Conference in April) for the Service Group Executive to complete a survey of branches and regions and produce both a report on this and campaigning guidelines by October 2017. This should include briefing materials for local councillors, who often do not appear to know what is being done in their name.

2/ calls for clear advice to branches about pensions where staff transfer from the NHS to Councils and other public bodies rather than to private / voluntary sector providers.

DBS (Disclosure and Barring Service, England and Wales), PVG (Protecting Vulnerable Groups Scheme, Scotland)
(SOCM0042) Submitted by Lanarkshire Health

Conference notes the work done by UNISON'S Professional Service Group and contracted Lawyers for those members who are registered with a Governing body and find themselves accused of failures in Fitness to Practice.

Conference is concerned that the PSU has recently made the decision not to provide services at regional and national level for those of our members who face being listed on DBS and PSU.

Does conference not consider that all our members, regardless of whether or not they need to register with a governing body and no matter what their title or job role, are all professionals delivering specific services within healthcare?

When our members are being considered for listing on DBS and PSU then the result can mean that they are no longer able to work to deliver services within a health and social care setting therefore face dismissal. Surely those members should be afforded UNISON's highest level of representation in order to give them a greater chance of remaining employed within the health and social care settings.

Agenda for Change – let's improve from a position of strength
(SOCM0036) Submitted by Greater London Region

Conference notes that the talks to refresh the Agenda for Change pay structure are continuing, and are pleased that Trade Unions have refused to trade on terms and conditions in order to improve pay.

During this negotiating period, it will be important to make sure that we use the current Agenda for Change agreement to its best possible advantage.

2017 Health Care Service Group Conference UNISON PRELIMINARY AGENDA

The Executive does much work to support the Agenda for Change agreement at UK level. We continue to chair the NHS Staff Council, and have an active lay delegation at all meetings. UNISON holds seats on all subgroups, chairing many of them. The union is a lead player in the terms and conditions groups in Scotland, Wales and Northern Ireland. This work is designed to ensure Agenda for Change remains fit for purpose.

This is important work, but for Agenda for Change to be the cornerstone of fairness and equality in the NHS, this national work needs to be backed up by robust guardianship and application of the agreement at employer level.

The purpose of this motion is to set out what the union could do to better train, support and guide local activists to get the best out of the full provisions of Agenda for Change.

Over the last few years we have seen attacks to Agenda for Change come in a range of guises - from the full frontal mobilisation of the South West Cartel to the recent cash for pensions scandals. In these high profile cases, the union is able to run very public and – most often – successful campaigns. However, the bigger risk to Agenda for Change is arguably the slow erosion of the agreement by stealth, happening in every branch with opportunistic employers and an over-worked, under-resourced cadre of activists. All too often, reps are unsure about how to assess the implications of local proposals or where to go for clarity, advice and help.

A strong collective agreement, maintained nationally and well applied and enforced locally, is a key ingredient of the quality workforce we think the NHS deserves.

For the union to realise this vision, we will need to undertake a collaborative approach through which we can learn from each other, share best practice and understand how to raise levels of expertise and confidence across the whole UK.

Conference calls on the HSGE to:

1. Work with LAOS to develop a comprehensive Agenda for Change training programme for activists and organisers, prioritising those areas of the agreement most frequently undermined/at risk
2. Provide lay reps and organising staff with advice on how to make better use of staff council structures to advance their own bargaining agenda, including a clear escalation process
3. Maintain close liaison within NHS Staff Council structures to make strategic use of advances in any of the four countries.
4. Work with branches facing threats to terms and conditions to use legal cases and lawful industrial action strategically to advance our bargaining agenda
5. Embed at all levels the responsibility to report threats to AfC in good time and seek early advice
6. Use the existing NHS Staff Council structures and the commitment to 'partnership working' to jointly issue advice and guidance to local NHS employers reminding them of their responsibilities under Agenda for Change to jointly carry out job evaluation and job matching at a local level and also their responsibility to facilitate local staff side involvement in these processes.

2017 Health Care Service Group Conference UNISON PRELIMINARY AGENDA

Mental Health Champions

(SOCM0054) Submitted by Northumberland Tyne and Wear Health

Mental health issues are reported to affect one in three of us throughout our lifetime. Although statistically women are more likely to develop common mental health issues than men it is an issue that impacts all of our members. A recent survey also suggests that there has been a marked increase in mental health issues in young women whilst it has remained consistent with young men. As a Union with over 1 million members, this is an issue we cannot overlook.

Mental health issues can affect people in many different ways, including barriers to understanding, social anxiety and low self-esteem. This can result in valued ideas and great potential being missed.

UNISON takes pride in being inclusive of all our members and this is as it should be. However, it is possible, even likely, that we have many members with a great amount of potential and skills to contribute, who simply feel unable to come forward due to fear of rejection and validity.

As a branch whose members are instrumental in providing care to the public of the North East who experience mental health issues, NTW branch would like to put forward this motion which will both support and promote all UNISON's members who feel unable, at this time, to engage with our union and to become active, due to their current mental health issues.

This conference notes that:

a) Mental Health issues remain a veiled cloak of stigma. UNISON must be seen to be proactive in informing our members that we will support them to develop the skills they need to contribute in whatever way they feel able to. We need to challenge stigma, enabling trust and confidence that all our members are valued. It is essential that we enable those experiencing mental health issues to feel open and honest knowing that they will not be judged.

b) We need to provide real support. Where required, it should be possible for UNISON to provide Mental Health Champions. Whether at conferences, training days or policy events, delegates/members should have easy access to a recognised and experienced mental health practitioner who can provide skilled and approved intervention to enable full participation.

c) UNISON needs to promote tolerance of mental health issues. Some Mental Health conditions can cause cognitive, emotional and behavioural changes. This can result in an individual presenting differently than expected. Causes for this may include anxiety, mental stimulation and/or frustration. Where this arises, members/delegates should be mindful and mental health issues are included under disability as a protected characteristic under the Equality Act 2010.

This conference therefore calls upon UNISON's Health Care Service Group to:

- i) Take a lead in promoting awareness of mental health issues
- ii) Develop a strategy to enable and support members with mental health issues, allowing them to feel valued and able to become involved with UNISON.
- iii) Ensure accessibility to Mental Health Champions at conferences, training and policy days.
- iv) Promote tolerance of mental health issues at UNISON events.

STP's The Future of the NHS?

(SOCM0057) Submitted by Eastern Region

Conference notes that despite their often bland phrasing and heavy cosmetic decoration with proposals for improved integration of services, collaboration between providers and with commissioners, and public health measures which we could all endorse, the 44 Sustainability & Transformation Plans (STPs) in England represent proposals for over £24 billion of cuts, "efficiencies" and "savings" by 2020-21, which can only be at the expense of health workers and patients.

While some STPs pull up short of spelling out explicit plans for rationalisation, reconfiguration, "back office" consolidation, bed cuts and staffing reductions, most of them set course in that direction and seek to enlist local authorities in support of plans that will reduce access to services for many of the local communities they are elected to represent.

UNISON notes that while many STPs contain plans for new hospitals, expansion of existing hospitals, new community facilities and new 'digital' services, there is little or no NHS capital available to fund these developments, leaving many of them an empty promise, alongside a real plan for cuts in existing services.

UNISON opposes austerity-driven cutbacks in hospital, community and mental health services, whether these be presented in the form of STPs or less overt moves towards reconfiguration, cost-cutting and consolidation by trusts. We agree to support national campaigns on this and campaigns to defend local access to hospital services until new, superior, alternative evidence-based services are developed, properly staffed and funded, that ensure safe and improved services for patients.

We also support the TUC campaign for an end to the 7 years of real terms funding freeze that is squeezing the life out of our NHS, reducing performance on key services, and undermining public confidence in the NHS – with the threat of 4 more years to come. We call for funding to be increased immediately from the current disastrous level with further increases year by year towards the levels of comparable European and OECD countries, and for an end to the waste of billions on a competitive market system.

While endorsing the aspiration to greater integration of health and social care for the benefit of patients, UNISON notes that the application of means-tested charges for social care, the extent of the enforced cutbacks in budgets and raised eligibility thresholds, coupled with the fragmentation and privatisation of most domiciliary care and the private ownership of nursing homes prevents integration with an NHS that is still funded through general taxation and free at point of use.

Although in principle we welcome NHS England's moves to reverse, or in some cases override the Lansley Health & Social Care Act, restore strategic planning and develop a fresh collaboration between competing trusts, UNISON notes that the Act remains in place. As a result many irresponsible CCGs, not least in Staffordshire, are continuing to contract out services, some awarding fresh contracts to Virgin and other private sector providers even as other contracts end in failure. STPs do not reverse the Act, and cannot eradicate the divisive market system deepened in 2012.

Conference calls on the SGE to work to do all that it can to support the bringing in of legislation restore the NHS as a service publicly financed, publicly owned and publicly provided.
