Overall summary

UNISON is the UK's largest public service union, representing some 1.3 million people working in local government, the NHS, schools, police staff, utilities, the community and voluntary sector and for private companies providing public services.

The Communications Unit is a multi-skilled team of communications professionals providing a full communications service to the union. Our teams of writers, planners, designers and digital staff set the external tone of voice for the union; provide our key internal communications channels (magazines, printed campaign materials, website and digital) and plan engaging campaigns designed to promote the union's key issues to members, the public, opinion formers and supporters. We also plan, monitor and manage an annual recruitment marketing campaign which brings thousands of new members into the union each year.

The Communications Co-ordinator will provide professional support to the unit's communications processes. You'll use templates to layout publications, be able to make accurate amendments and minor changes to text and layout; write copy for publication and tag stories and other assets appropriately for web publishing.

You'll have excellent communication skills – verbal and written – and be looking to develop your experience across a wide range of online and offline communications publishing processes. You'll be able to write accurate and reader-friendly copy for print publications or online/digital communications.

You'll be able to work on your own initiative but also as part of a team, and need the ability to understand UNISON's key objectives and priorities and how your work helps the union achieve those.

Experience of using digital tools and systems, using a Mac and professional layout, design or web software is useful.

Key responsibilities

- Carrying out accurate text updates and changes, using professional layout software (Adobe InDesign).
- Writing, checking and sub-editing copy for leaflets, booklets, webpages and other outward-facing publicity materials, ensuring it conforms to UNISON house-style, is accurate and easy to read.
- Implement and oversee the production of branch-customisable publicity materials for key recruitment initiatives and outward-facing campaigns and providing assistance to branches to support this.
- Updating text on web pages using a content management system (WordPress).
- Support our printed publicity stock processes, liaising with our storage and distribution house and officers across the union to ensure that stocks of materials are kept at reasonable levels.
- Working with officers to ensure that any items which need updating are flagged up and scheduled in for review, amendment and reprinting.
- Scheduling the production of new print and design work, liaising with internal clients to keep them up to date on the progress of communications jobs.
- Tagging web content, photos and other assets for publication on the website
- Chasing progress on print and production work, liaising with designers and internal and external printers and providing reports as necessary.
- Support a shared database of member contacts for case studies, including photographs, stories, member information and permission and usage rights.
- Analyse publishing data to assess trends. Provide detailed reports for the unit management team, colleagues and senior staff at national and regional level.
- Act as a first point of contact for dealing with inquiries requiring the need to develop a good knowledge of the work of the union and the specialist functions of the communications team.
- Project-planning and management of small project teams around specific areas of work.

- Accurate, secure and confidential handling of large amounts of data, including financial information and personal data.
- Provide support for branches in developing locally customisable recruitment and organising materials.
- Provide support for the Director of Communications in working on recruitment marketing initiatives with our lead external agency.
- Understand and work within UNISON's aims and values, objectives and priorities as decided by the General Secretary, senior staff and national executive council.
